

Secret Request For Legal Opinion Halts Tax Cut Machinery

By DON BEMAN
United Press International
Gov. J. James Exon said Tuesday the process of putting into effect a cut in the state income tax for this year has been suspended at least temporarily, if not permanently.

Exon said the reason for an order to Tax Commissioner William Peters to stop the tax cut machinery in mid-air was a request for an opinion from the attorney general's office on the constitutionality of related legislation by a person who so far has chosen to remain secret.

"Someone, we don't know who, has requested an attorney general's opinion on the constitutionality of LB10," the governor said.

Earlier, state officials said it was hoped the new income tax formulas could be ready for use by next month at the latest.

Plans Held Up
"This secret party who has requested an opinion has caused us to hold up any present plans to reduce the income tax this year," Exon said.

"But we're hoping that when the opinion is handed down, which we expect to be soon, we will be able to go ahead with the tax cut," he added.

A check was made with the attorney general's office on the possible source of such a request and the answer was that policies prohibit disclosure, at least for the time being.

At issue is a law which was passed during this year's session of the unicameral and was numbered B10. It included a provision directing the current state income tax rate of 15% be cut back to 13%.

Unexpected Revenue
The reason the cut could be realized was because of greater revenue generated by the existing tax rates than was expected.

The actual subject of the opinion, Exon said, was another portion of the bill.

The question was on a portion of LB10 which hinged on the contents of another bill, LB529. That bill, however, was vetoed by the governor successfully.

The provision was to the effect that the State Board of Equalization must take into account not only appropriations actually made by the Legislature in setting state tax rates, but any potential future obligations as well.

Exon said that provision amounted to "stockpiling money for later spending by the members of the Legislature."

But the governor contended that because LB529 was not passed over his veto then the portion in question did not really exist for later referencing purposes in LB10.

Earlier, Exon declined to request an opinion on the bill, saying as far as he was concerned the one provision didn't exist and he wanted the other portion which contained the tax cut provision to stand.

But now that the attorney general has been officially requested to write an opinion, Exon said the whole bill, including the tax cut, is up in the air.

"There's a possibility the whole act could be declared unconstitutional because of the form the bill was in when it passed," he said.

The bill's contents specifically referred to LB529.

On that basis, Exon said the tax cut could be headed down the drain whether there was any real question over the other part or not.

"We know of no other way to cut taxes this year if this law is unconstitutional," he said.

The governor said in other words he is hoping that the attorney general agrees with his contention that because LB529 did not exist when the Legislature adjourned for the year because of his veto, then the remainder of the bill, specifically the tax cut, will stand as valid.

Colin Announces Change In Assigned Parking Lot

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer
Beginning Wednesday there will be only 24 assigned parking stalls in the gated lot of the County-City Building as compared to the 94 previously.

At the Tuesday meeting of the County-City Building Committee, Commissioner Robert Colin announced that the new cards for gate admittance would be issued for use beginning Wednesday.

He said that the 24 stalls along the south wall of the building would be assigned to elected officials with the other 70 stalls being available on a first-come first-serve basis to those persons for whom cards are authorized. It was noted that a fee will be charged after the lot south across the street from the County-City Building is paved.

The Building Committee directed the architects to find out how much it will cost to grade that block for blacktopping and also to report at the next meeting on the tree situation since it was suggested that some of the trees located there be preserved.

Architect Bill Schlaebitz reported that the cost of asphalt concrete for the design for a 248-stall lot presented the committee Tuesday would be approximately $47,640 plus $4,500 for concrete approaches.

He said that these figures do not include the cost of removal of the building there nor any tree removal which might be necessary.

In other business, the committee, at the suggestion of City Councilwoman Helen Boosalis, agreed to thoroughly examine the entire space situation in the County-City Building to see if there are some areas which could be used to better advantage.

The committee also rejected a suggestion by City Councilman Bob Sikyta to have a telephone answering service to handle after-hours calls.

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf and the other members of the committee indicated that they didn't think anything would be solved by such a service in that many people might become irritated when they are not able to get an answer at the time of the call.

Watergate Affair Knowledge Denied

. . . By Maurice Stans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maurice H. Stans disclaimed all knowledge of the Watergate affair and other political espionage Tuesday, saying it was his job to raise the money, others to conduct the campaign.

He also said he was told that former White House counsel John W. Dean III authorized the raising of money for payment to Watergate defendants and their lawyers and that he gave $75,000 for that purpose, not knowing the reason.

"I was not very familiar at all with the operation of the campaign committee," President Nixon's chief fund-raiser told Senate investigators. "I was only familiar with their objectives."

Stans, frustrated in efforts to defer his testimony, said he gave $75,000 cash to Nixon's personal lawyer 12 days after the Watergate break-in after being told, "I need all the cash I can get. This is for a White House project I have been asked to take care of. You will have to trust me."

Stans said the lawyer, Herbert W. Kalmbach, told him "I am asking for it on high authority," and would take only cash, not a check. Stans said he was not told then on whose authority.

"What went through your mind as to who this person might be?" asked Sen. Joseph Montoya, D-N.M.

Stans said he learned from Kalmbach only six weeks ago that "the request to raise the money came from John Dean."

Dean was fired April 30 as counsel. Stans said Kalmbach told him, "he asked Dean whether it was a legal transaction and Dean assured him it was."

"Being unwilling to proceed on that basis he (Kalmbach) went to Mr. Ehrlichman. Mr. Ehrlichman told him it was a legal transaction."

John D. Ehrlichman resigned April 30 as Nixon's chief domestic adviser.

Kalmbach has told the General Accounting Office that the $75,000 was part of $210,000 he raised specifically for the Watergate defendants.

Stans said that when Kalmbach approached him, he told the attorney he had no cash, but "I did have two parcels totaling $75,000 that were outside the committee and I gave that to him."

Asked why he turned over so much money, Stans replied:

"Mr. Kalmbach was a man I knew very well. He had been my principal deputy in the 1968 campaign. He subsequently had close affiliation with a number of people in the White House. He was personal counsel to the President. He was a man I knew, of highest integrity, trustworthiness and honesty."

"I had no reason to doubt anything he told me, and I didn't."

Stans testified "there may have been some unintended technical violations" of campaign finance laws, but that his knowledge of the other activities was limited to what he read in the press.

Stans had sought to defer his Senate appearance on the ground that he is under federal indictment in New York in another campaign contribution case, but the committee brushed that plea aside.

Stans gave the committee a lengthy run-down on two controversial contributions totaling $114,000 that found their way into the bank account of Bernard L. Barker, one of the seven defendants convicted of conspiracy, burglary and wiretapping in the raid on Democratic Party headquarters.

In his version, the sequence was legal because the money was contributed prior to April 7, 1972, when a new law requiring disclosure of contributions went into effect.

He said the money could only have gotten into Barker's account "through the hands of G. Gordon Liddy," who was legal counsel for the finance arm of Nixon's re-election committee.

Liddy has been described as the "organizer, the money man" of the Watergate break-in. He was sentenced to a minimum prison term of 6 years, 8 months after his conviction in January.

Stans was asked about the $83,000 campaign treasurer Hugh W. Sloan Jr. said he gave to Liddy in April last year. Stans said Sloan came to him for authorization.

"I said, I don't know. I'll find out from John Mitchell," Stans related. Mitchell was the campaign chairman.

Mitchell's reply to the query, Stans said, was "I don't know you'll have to ask (Jeb) Magruder because he's in charge of the campaign and he directs the spending."

"I said, you mean if Magruder tells Sloan to pay Liddy these sums of money, he should pay?" He said, "that's right." I went back to Sloan and found out he had talked to Magruder and had the same answer.

Magruder was deputy director of the campaign after Mitchell resigned as attorney general and became campaign chairman.

Sloan had told the senators a different story. He said when he asked Stans about the reason for money after the Mitchell meeting, Stans replied "I don't know, and you don't want to know."

Stans, who testified more than two hours, was scheduled to return Wednesday for the 10th day of the hearings.

The silver-haired Stans, Nixon's secretary of commerce until he took over the finance side of the campaign is under indictment for conspiracy, obstruction of justice and perjury in connection with a campaign contribution by Robert L. Vesco.

Preceding Stans as a witness was Herbert L. Porter, who said he had been told that John N. Mitchell, while still attorney general, was shown typed copies of private correspondence from the campaign of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, then leading aspirant for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Mitchell is a co-defendant with Stans, Vesco and Harry L. Sears in the Vesco case.

Porter wound up the testimony, he began Thursday, when he told the committee he had lied under oath to the grand jury and at the Watergate trial of Liddy and James W. McCord Jr.

Nixon Plan To Overcome Fuel Shortage Jeopardized in order to cope with the heating fuel crisis.

But the highest court's ruling, which came on a 4-4 vote, presumably gives environmentalists a strong legal leg to stand on in a lawsuit seeking to prohibit the use of greater supplies of high sulfur fuel.

The result could be a battle between the courts and the Nixon administration over what measures can be taken to deal with a fuel shortage over the winter.

One step the administration might take is to seek to amend the Clean Air Act to permit the expanded use of high sulfur coal. But Congress might balk at this.

The ruling by the Supreme Court upheld the decision of Judge John H. Pratt of U.S. District Court here, who ordered the EPA to turn down state air pollution control plans that permitted "significant deterioration" of existing air quality

VA Admits Brain Surgery Used To Modify Behavior

(c) Washington Star-News
Washington — The Veterans Administration, which in April admitted that its hospitals perform brain surgery to modify undesirable behavior, has acknowledged that 16 such operations have been performed since 1960.

The disclosure was made recently to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., chairman of the Senate Health subcommittee, after Kennedy had asked the VA to recheck its records on so-called psychosurgery.

At first, the VA reported 20 such operations, but later said that four had been misclassified.

The subcommittee will hold further hearings on the discrepancy and related matters next week.

Most of the psychosurgery performed in this country is done by inserting electrodes into the almond-shaped portion of the brain, called amygdala, which is thought to play a major role in controlling the emotions, particularly rage.

The electrodes are used to locate the sites of abnormal electrical discharges and when these are precisely identified the tissue in question is permanently destroyed with the electrodes already in place.

Sometime areas of the brain other than the amygdala — such as the temporal lobes — are operated on. However, it was found that they often warped judgment and had other adverse effects on patients' personalities.

Beginning last October, the VA issued a series of regulations with regard to psychosurgery stipulating among other things that no patient be subjected to an operation without a review by psychiatrists and doctors other than those directly involved in his care.

However, at a February hearing of the Senate health subcommittee Dr. Burtram S. Brown, director of the National Institute of Mental Health said that in his opinion psychosurgery on humans is at best experimental work has yet to be done on animals.

Advocates of behavior-altering operations maintain that when drug treatments and psychotherapy fail, surgery may be the only alternative to life-long incarceration in a prison or mental hospital.

But critics of this viewpoint argue that, like the lobotomies of the past, the operations result in irreparable damage to the intellect and personality — a price they say, too high to pay.

The four veterans hospitals currently involved in psychosurgery are in Durham, N.C.; Long Beach, Calif.; Minneapolis, Minn.; and Syracuse, N.Y.

Economic Action Soon?

Washington — President Nixon held an extraordinary meeting with his senior economic advisers Tuesday and the Republican leader in the Senate, Hugh Scott, hinted that the White House would announce a new package of anti-inflation measures Wednesday.

Penalty For Drunk Driving Is Set Aside

KEARNEY, Neb. (AP)—In what may be a landmark decision, Buffalo County District Judge S.S. Sidner has ruled unconstitutional the penalty provisions of a new state law on driving while intoxicated.

In the case at issue, the judge set aside a driver's license suspension. The opinion by Judge Sidner was handed down this week in the case of the state vs. James H. Oliver of Grand Island.

Oliver was convicted in county court of driving while intoxicated and received a six-month suspension of his driver's license. He had been arrested by the State Patrol following a car accident.

Oliver appealed the conviction to District Court. Judge Sidner upheld the conviction, finding that the arrest was proper and that the evidence

Some Officials Rap Parking Lot Change

The taking away of assigned parking stalls from some appointed officials and deputies as well as from the Lincoln Municipal Court judges caused some stir Tuesday afternoon.

Municipal Judge Thomas McManus told the county commissioners that there would be many inequities because of the change.

He and Municipal Judge Donald Grant, noting that the district court judges had assigned stalls, said it appeared that there was some discrimination involved in the assigning of stalls.

"We are involved with more people in our court than any other office in this building," Judge McManus said, adding that if there weren't enough parking stalls in the lot to go around the entire lot should be on a "first-come first-serve" basis instead of selecting a few.

County Board Chairman Robert Colin told the judges that the commissioners were not the people to contact but that they should talk to the mayor since the city originally had been allowed to park in the south lot only on a temporary basis and then wouldn't get out.

The judges said that the mayor had referred them to the commissioners.

Colin and Commissioner Kenneth Bourne told the judges that there would never be more than about ten more cards issued for admittance to the gated area than there are stalls.

Judge Grant asked if they felt that all the parking complaints were going to be alleviated by 10 additional places.

The commissioners then told the judges that they should take the matter up with the building committee.

According to the building committee minutes of May 9, approval was given a change in policy on the south parking lot to have only "stalls immediately adjacent to the building assigned."

"The rest would be unassigned. However, it would still require cards to gain entrance to the unassigned spaces," the minutes stated, with the county directed to implement the plans.

"I regret the outcome, but to press the legal argument further would risk unduly delaying proceedings and divert attention from our essential tasks," Cox said in a statement.

Sirica ruled in connection with a request from the Senate

Blacks, Whites Must Ride Buses

Detroit — A federal appeals court ruled that black children from Detroit must ride buses out to the suburbs and white children in the suburbs ride buses into Detroit to achieve racial balance in the schools. The decision may presage a final deter-

ANDREOTTI... submits resignation
Italy Premier Quits

ROME (AP) — Christian Democrat Premier Giulio Andreotti resigned Tuesday in a move to swing Italy back to the left at a time of recession and social and labor unrest.

The new government, which politicians hope will be formed by next month, is expected to include the Marxist-oriented Socialists.

Andreotti's resignation marked a reversal of policy for the dominant Christian Democrats, who broke a 10-year partnership with the Socialists 1½ years ago. But Andreotti's moderate government, including the conservative-minded Liberals, failed to bail Italy out of its worst economic slump in decades.

President Giovanni Leone asked Andreotti to stay on in a caretaker capacity pending formation of the new government. Leone slated consultations with Parliament and party leaders to start Thursday.

A leading Italian banker said Italy's economic problems stem chiefly from political quarreling among parties. He said the economy could recover only if politicians stopped bickering "like cats and dogs." He referred in particular to the faction-ridden Christian Democrat party.

In the 30 years since the fall of fascism Italy has had 34 governments.

6 Die; 31 Hurt In 2 Explosions In Sleepy Town

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — A car bomb exploded without warning in a sleepy market town Tuesday, killing six persons and injuring 31 in Northern Ireland's worst single act of terrorism for a year.

The blast was one of two, within minutes of each other, that brought chaos to Coleraine, a mainly Protestant town of about 7,000 near Londonderry. The explosions came with Northern Ireland's violence rising daily after a lull.

The second explosion, in a garage, caused no casualties after a gasoline pump attendant spotted the bomb and gave a warning.

helplessly off the icy continent. A government newspaper said 50 polar scientists and 10 crew members were evacuated Monday by helicopter to another expedition ship, the Navarin, standing by 150 miles away.

Eighty persons remain aboard the trapped Ob, which is drifting northwest at a rate of three miles a day, and officials say they hope she will survive the tremendous pressures of the ice against her hull and reach open sea toward the end of July.

However, the Soviet government is taking no chances and has sent a third expedition vessel, the research ship Professor Zubov, back to the antarctic to assist in the rescue operation if needed. The Professor Zubov had already returned to Leningrad from this year's antarctic cruise.

According to the Soviet press, the Ob was trapped in ice during a storm while it was resupplying the research station at Leningradskaya, established by the Russians on Oates Coast two years ago.

Delegates Again Postpone Signing Cease-Fire Pact

PARIS (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho conferred for 4½ hours Tuesday without concluding their draft 14-point accord to tighten the Vietnam cease-fire.

For the second time in four days, objections from the Saigon government forced Kissinger and Tho to postpone arrangements for formal signature of the accord by the United States, North and South Vietnam and the Viet Cong.

At the end of the meeting, in a villa owned by an American businessman in suburban St. Nom la Breteche, Kissinger announced he will resume his talks with Tho Wednesday.

"There is nothing else I can tell you," Kissinger told waiting newsmen.

At the International Conference Center on Avenue Kleber, where the original peace agreement was signed Jan. 27, French officials and scores of police guards waited all day for dignitaries to arrive for the planned signing ceremony.

When the Kissinger-Tho meeting ended inconclusively, the officials and guards left the building. A news conference planned by Kissinger was cancelled. It was not immediately clear whether the center would be reopened Wednesday for the signing ceremony.

The red carpet, first rolled out in vain Saturday, was removed for the second time.

Kissinger arrived from Washington on Tuesday morning in his U.S. Air Force plane and opened his talk with Tho less than 90 minutes later. Officials at Orly Airport said the plane's crew was ordered to stand by to fly Kissinger and his staff back to Washington Tuesday evening.

but the departure was also canceled.

American and North and South Vietnamese delegation officials declined comment on the new delay.

Despite the setback to Kissinger's hopes for a quick signature, his meeting with Tho was marked by the same smiling cordiality that was noticeable throughout their week of talks in May and their three meetings last week.

The two delegations lunched together in the St. Nom villa and could be seen during a brief break walking side by side in the garden.

High American officials said in Washington earlier that the United States does not regard Saigon's objections to the new accord as valid and has threatened to cut off economic reconstruction aid if President Nguyen Van Thieu persists in his refusal to sign.

South Vietnamese and other sources said Thieu originally had a substantial list of objections. It was not clear which of these were being maintained and caused the renewed setback.

The Washington sources had described Kissinger as confident that all of Thieu's objections would be withdrawn following weekend contacts between Washington and Saigon.

Thieu was reported balking at the designation of Viet Cong-controlled areas as "territory" because he feels this constituted in effect his recognition of the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government.

Thieu also objected to the creation of a national council of reconciliation and concord — foreseen in the original peace agreement — without a prior decision on the date of South Vietnamese elections.

The South Vietnamese leader further objected to granting Viet Cong officers on the joint military missions unrestricted diplomatic privileges in South Vietnam under the terms of the original text, and he resisted arrangements for the signing ceremony.

Kissinger, Tho 'Just Restating Original Pact'

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. and North Vietnamese efforts to strengthen the Vietnam peace agreement so far have produced what amounts to restating neglected provisions of the original agreement.

South Vietnamese government sources divulged draft documents Tuesday showing that Henry A. Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho have thus far been unable to work out foolproof machinery to force the South Vietnamese and Viet Cong to abide by the cease-fire signed more than four months ago.

The final points of disagreement between Kissinger and Tho remain secret. But in the draft agreement disclosed by the South Vietnamese informants, cease-fire will still depend on the sincerity of the opposing South Vietnamese sides.

Given the hatred and mistrust between the two sides, the Communists' public goal of dominating Vietnam and reuniting it into one nation, and President Nguyen Van Thieu's reluctance to relinquish any power in the South, there is reason for skepticism.

'Love Drug' Abuse Said Now At Epidemic Stage

(c) Chicago Daily News A widely sold sleeping pill, sometimes called the "love drug" because of supposedly aphrodisiac qualities, is criticized in the current journal of the American Medical Assn. as dangerous, addictive and potentially fatal.

The nonbarbiturate drug, methaqualone, is dispensed under such trade names as qualade, optamil, sopor, parast, somnafac and biphetamine T.

"Abuse of methaqualone has quietly reached the proportions of a countryside epidemic among students and others," wrote Dr. Emil P. Pascarelli, of Roosevelt Hospital, New York City.

"The abusers, caught in its 'love drug' mystique and seeking a 'high,' are oblivious to many of its dangers."

The drug actually decreases sexual capacity because of its depressant effect.

An AMA editorial recommended that the drug be placed under production quotas and unrefillable prescriptions.

"Methaqualone, in addition to being widely abused, has no advantage over other sedatives, may produce serious toxic reactions and has a potential for both physical and psychological dependence," the editorial said.

"It cannot be considered, therefore, to be a drug essential to medical practice."

Mayan Temple Is Rediscovered

By The New York Times

New York — A lost Mayan Indian temple, a will-o'-the-wisp that has beckoned explorers for 60 years, was rediscovered last month by an expedition headed by Hugh and Suzanne Johnston, documentary film makers, and Gillett G. Griffin, pre-Columbian art historian at Princeton University.

An almost accidental triumph wrested from thick jungle at Rio Bec in the southeastern Yucatan, the temple of limestone, is a beautiful and mysterious building of around A.D. 800 — perhaps a palace — that was originally discovered in 1912 and prosaically labeled "Temple B."

Rediscovery was hindered because of the temple's location in a dense hollow and because of confusing notes left by the 1912 expedition. Nonetheless, when found, it was in an extraordinarily fine state of preservation, showing little evidence of deterioration since it was photographed and documented in 1912.

"It's quite apart from any building we encountered," said Griffin. "It ranks with the Temple of the Sun at Palenque, with the Governor's Palace at Uxmal."

Examined stone by stone and compared with photographs taken by the 1912 expedition, Temple B has remained unchanged despite the torrential rains and succeeding dry spells, forest fires and the encroaching jungle growth that mantled the building and took root in interstices. The explorers found stairs, which literature on Rio Bec architecture describes as "false, imitating the pyramids."

Also apparently unchanged since 1912 were such other highly decorative embellishments as stone trellis panels let into exterior walls, a divided roof surmount of airy openwork and half-columns in groups of three at the rear. Inside, eight to 10 feet of debris from the collapse of a section of roof buries whatever works of art or utility the building had held. But, still standing are large sections of wall stucco engraved with graffiti, some in symbolic designs.

The Johnstons, a husband and wife team, had been engaged by the National Educational Television Station in New York City to make a film on "Mystery of the Maya." The expedition was comprised of a party of nine, including native woodsmen.

Power Again Cut In East

By The Associated Press

Power companies along the East Coast strained Tuesday to meet rising demands for electricity as another day of hot, muggy weather left millions of people sweltering and forced some voltage reductions.

The New York area was among the hardest hit. As temperatures neared the 93-degree record for the date, the New York Power Pool ordered Consolidated Edison Co. to reduce voltage to the city and Westchester County by 5 per cent. The Niagara-Mohawk power grid serving western New York state also was ordered to cut back by 5 per cent.

Voltage reductions by Con Ed on Monday — when the temperature soared to a record-breaking 95 — reached 8 per cent, the maximum the company can manage without actually blacking out some customers.

The cutback lasted 4½ hours before Con Edison announced full power had been restored.

Con Ed said demand for power reached an all-time record of 7,917,000 kilowatts Tuesday. The previous high was 7,872,000 on July 19, 1972.

Metals Melted In Space Furnace

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Skylab's astronauts used a superhot electron beam Tuesday to melt metals in a space furnace and test a process that could lead to a multibillion-dollar business of space manufacturing.

SkyLab 1 commander Charles Conrad Jr. fired up the furnace to test techniques which experts believe could lead to production of perfect ball bearings, super-pure metals and very strong materials which are impossible to make on earth.

Conrad's crewmates, Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz, concentrated on operation of a solar telescope and performing a series of medical experiments.

The astronauts were in their 19th day of a 28-day space mission.

Weitz and Conrad also operated a battery of earth resources cameras during a photo pass from North Dakota, over the Great Lakes, Chesapeake Bay, the Atlantic Ocean and the Caribbean.

Data from the photosensors on Tuesday's run will be used to make wildlife studies in North Dakota; survey pollution in the Great Lakes; study Cleveland, Detroit, Pittsburgh and Baltimore urban land use, and evaluate the ecology of the Chesapeake Bay area.

Giving commentary on a television view beamed to earth, Weitz said: "Lake Michigan is clear and Detroit is loud and clear."

"That must be Cleveland," he said as the spacecraft flew over at four miles a second. "There's Lake Erie... there's some pollution coming up in some water on the lower portion of your screen."

Washington he said, was "awfully hazy."

"I can see the Potomac, but a combination of haze and high cirrus clouds kept us from seeing the city."

The tests are conducted in a vacuum inside a metal chamber. William O. Armstrong, a space agency official, said: "In space we could prepare electronic solids and other materials we can only daydream about on earth because of interference from gravity."

Daniel J. Fink, a vice president of General Electric Co. which has invested in space manufacturing research, said: "It has been estimated that by the end of this century the total value of electronic materials and biologicals manufactured in space could run upward of $50 billion."

The lack of gravity in space permits melted substances to mix thoroughly without heavier particles settling out.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

The people of this country have always seemed to cherish the image of the little guy, the so-called average person and his contribution to the nation. It is no wonder that this image prevails since it is so often that the little guy is called upon to make things work.

Individually we tend to discount our own significance, to think in terms of a meaningless contribution to the whole of a society, but when we look at ourselves collectively, it is easy to see the power of the single person. It is the individual to whom the nation now looks for a solution to the fuel shortage.

Certainly, Congress is busying itself with matters of fuel allocations and it should do this but that is nothing more than an effort to deal with the shortage, not anything by way of a solution to it. The solution, if there is to be one, lies with the average American.

And once again, it is relatively insignificant action that is involved. We are urged to cut our driving speed on the highways by 10 miles an hour, for instance, thereby saving two or three miles to the gallon of gas. We are supposed to watch the air pressure in our auto tires, to keep our cars well tuned and to drive conservatively in the city.

In other areas we are asked to turn off the lights when we leave a room, to use household appliances efficiently, to practice saving ways in heating and air-conditioning and to do other things to conserve the use of electricity and natural gas.

None of these is a big item, and yet if they were put into practice by the American people, they would make an astounding difference in things. It might be likened to the right to vote. A single vote doesn't seem like much in an election but when all the single votes are added up, they make a staggering impact upon our communities, states and the nation.

Much the same thing has been said about the economy. It is the spending and saving habits of the average wage-earner that determine the nature of our economy, not the decisions that are made in big, plush board-rooms.

When it comes to taxes to support governments, public officials again look to the average wage-earner. It is not the top 10% in income on which the nation runs but the vast numbers in the middle-income group that supply the financial grease on which public programs run.

There are extremes, of course, to which this kind of thinking can be taken and there are those who like to go to such extremes. There are those who rely too heavily upon middle-income America and, thereby, absolve themselves of responsibility in a host of areas.

But the key to the well-being and progress of this country has always been its middle class.

It is because of the national faith in this middle class and the structuring of affairs to serve it that we have progressed as we have. The wealth of the nation, despite pockets of concentration, is shared by a large and overwhelming part of the population.

The millionaire, for instance, may be influential and may lead an affluent life but for every one of him there are thousands of others who, collectively, are a bigger determining factor in the affairs of the nation.

But when you speak of power, impact or influence, you have to speak also of responsibility. Thus it is that the circle of things leads us back to reliance upon the average individual when a significant challenge presents itself. It may be a heady thought but it is, at the same time, a sobering one.

For the solution to many problems, the American people must simply look to themselves.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE

Ziegler Only Told What Told To Tell

NEW YORK — Reporters and columnists who endured months of increasing arrogance from Ron Ziegler over the Watergate mess are challenging his facts, taunting him with derisive laughter and even, in one case, calling him a liar to his face.

Mr. Ziegler is, after all, only a mouthpiece. His high-handed treatment of newsmen may leave his manners open to criticism, but it makes no sense to question his credibility.

He's only saying what he's told to say, and if the press thinks somebody is lying to them, let them look to the gentlemen who decide what they want the public to hear.

The disgruntled scribe who likened Mr. Ziegler to a ventriloquist's dummy meant to be insulting. He was more correct than he realized.

It's particularly ironic that the press should blame Mr. Ziegler for the content of his daily briefings, when newspapers are the first to complain the readers blame them for the news.

But blame Mr. Ziegler, they do. And it has been effective. Word of the attacks has even filtered up to the Oval office, a big breakthrough when you remember how much other big news has been censored by presidential messengers.

And so it came about that Mr. Ziegler was taken off the firing line. For some reason, somebody thought it might be a good idea to let him tag along with Henry Kissinger on the latest Paris peace talks. To get a "better substantive grasp" of the issues.

Meanwhile, what-to-do-about-Ron became part of the White House reorganization scramble. Now, we hear, he has been given Herb Klein's old job as communications director.

Mr. Klein, who abandoned his own newspaper career out of personal friendship, stuck with President Nixon for 27 years of public ups and downs. Then Mr. Nixon caught the brass ring — and that was just about the last we heard of Mr. Klein. Press room leaks hinted that the new President had become disenchanted with his political savvy.

But, out of loyalty to an old buddy (loyalty is very big in the White House, remember), Mr. Klein was given a fancy title and a big office and tucked securely out in left field, leaving the headline-making chores to Mr. Ziegler.

Now, in recent days, we have been getting our White House news (such as it is) from Gerald L. Warren, deputy press secretary. And his performance the first couple of times out wasn't what you might call so-so.

Already he's offered up a "speech of attrition" after venturing an erroneous interpretation on whether the White House will turn over the logs of presidential appointments and phone calls. But he's new on the job, he'll catch on.

(Just one more thing: if Mr. Ziegler should insist on keeping his old duties, brickbats and all, I reserve the right to declare this whole essay, to steal a word from Mr. X., "inoperative.")

Other Qualities Desired

Walter Annenberg, the Pennsylvania publisher who contributed heavily to President Nixon's 1968 campaign, still retains his post as ambassador to England even though Chicago insurance executive W. Clement Stone bid for the coveted London assignment with 1972 campaign contributions which reportedly hover around the one million dollar mark.

In Stone's case, the highest bidder couldn't win in the ambassadorship auction, although Stone's son-in-law was given a federal appointment by the Nixon administration as a means of expressing gratitude for Stone's generosity.

Usually, however, campaign gifts can win a diplomatic plum if that is what the donor desires. Appointed as ambassador to Luxembourg recently was Mrs. Ruth Farkas, who contributed $300,000 to the Republicans AFTER Nixon was reelected.

It was the Farkas appointment that spurred the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to attempt to block in the future the "sale" of U.S. ambassadorships to wealthy political contributors otherwise lacking in qualifications.

Under proposed rules, anyone contributing more than $5,000 to political candidates will be rejected by the committee unless he has prior diplomatic experience or special training in the affairs of the country to which he is named. "Ambassadorial nominations should not be for sale" to campaign donors who covet the prestige and social standing of an ambassadorship, the proposal said.

The sale of ambassadorships is an "evil" that has gone on for a long time and it really hasn't been very harmful except upon those occasions when insensitive and intemperate ambassadors not schooled in diplomatic skills have hurt the image of the U.S. Putting the situation into perspective, ambassadorships aren't really that important any more. Career embassy staffs handle the day-to-day working relations between countries and on matters of extreme importance, in this age of instant communications in a shrinking world, heads of state tend to talk them out among themselves or use roving trouble-shooters, such as Dr. Kissinger. Ambassadors are left largely to fulfill social obligations.

Still, it makes sense to require more of an ambassador than money and political fidelity. He or she should have other qualifications as well.

Human Service Planning Sought

City Council members in general reacted favorably Monday to a proposal by Councilwoman Sue Bailey to create a Human Services Advisory Committee to map city social needs on a six-year basis.

The proposed committee would parallel an advisory panel now existing within the city administration which sets a six-year tentative agenda for capital construction projects. The new panel, like the Capital Improvements Advisory Committee, would aid primarily in planning the executive budget.

It seems to us that if planning brick and mortar projects six years in advance has value, the same could be said for maintaining some sort of schedule for on-going human service programs. The financial requirements of those programs would at least be on the same sheet of paper for comparison purposes.

Among the types of programs which might come under the planning and budgeting process are the Lincoln Alcohol Safety Action Project, the Council on Alcoholism and Drugs and the Lincoln Area-wide Model Project on Aging. Mrs. Bailey has requested a listing of all human service-type programs which are now receiving city funding and that is an important initial step.

Mrs. Bailey's proposal has not been adopted by the council and it is subject to further discussion. But it was received favorably. Which can be read as recognition that the city can get a better handle than it has on the range and scope of services it provides, services which must compete for a limited amount of funds on a year-to-year basis.

ANTHONY LEWIS

In The Name Of Security

BOSTON — To prevent a crippling strike during the Korean war, President Truman seized the country's steel mills. There was no law authorizing the seizure. But when the steel companies sued to get their plants back, government lawyers said the President had inherent power under the Constitution to prevent such a national "catastrophe."

Then the trial judge, David A. Pine, put a question to the government counsel, Holmes Baldridge: "If the president directs (someone) to take you into custody, right now, and have you executed in the morning, you say there is no power for which the court may intervene?"

Baldridge had some difficulty with that question, and the judge gave him overnight to think it over. The next day Judge Pine changed to what he termed an easier question: If the president ordered Baldridge's home seized, would the courts be powerless because the president had "declared an emergency?"

"I do not believe any president would exercise such 'unusual power,'" Baldridge said, "unless in his opinion there was a grave and extreme national emergency existing."

"Is that your conception of our government?" Pine asked. "Is it not your conception that it is a government whose powers are derived solely from the Constitution?"

The question drove Baldridge to say that the Constitution gave only limited, specified powers to Congress and the courts — but gave the president "all of the executive power." Pine observed dryly, "I see." Soon thereafter he rejected that claim of unrestricted executive power and ordered the steel mills returned to their owners.

The danger that Pine so shrewdly exposed by his questions — the danger of a president's governing by decree in the name of national security — is with us now in much more alarming form. President Truman's seizure order was a public act, subject to political debate and judicial testing. President Nixon used his vision of national security to cover secret orders that have been brought to light only by lucky accident.

On July 15, 1970, the White House prepared a top secret Memorandum of Decisions on the New Program of "Domestic Intelligence." The New York Times published the memorandum last week. It will go down as one of the most chilling documents in American history.

Nixon directed intelligence operatives to intensify wiretapping and bugging of Americans deemed threats to "the internal security," to open their mail, to break into their homes. He authorized security men to listen in to all overseas telephone calls and ordered the CIA to increase its "coverage" of Americans traveling or living abroad.

The President did all that despite direct advice that some of the steps he ordered were clearly illegal. Quite apart from what the present inquiries may show about his involvement in the Watergate crimes, those directives should disqualify him from office.

But that point of the 1970 memorandum is broader than Richard Nixon. It shows how vulnerable we are to the doctrine that those in power may violate the law in the name of what they consider "national security." Even a man then so highly regarded as Richard Helms of the CIA apparently supported the 1970 program. Only J. Edgar Hoover's dogged opposition forced Nixon to drop it.

One of the curious things about the United States is that, again and again, we ask our judges to tell us the obvious — to tell us, for example, that the Constitution does not give presidents power without limit. But then, as a great judge said, we need education in the obvious.

To restore in this country the

TOM WICKER

No Taps For The Tappers

NEW YORK — Charles Colson has painted an appealing picture of a kindly President Nixon who did not press his inquiries about Watergate for fear of "making an innocent person a scapegoat," and who wanted to "reassure" his aides rather than cross-examine them.

"There was no grilling," Colson told Christopher Lydon of the New York Times. "The President was and is very trusting of his close colleagues and associates. That's not an unjustifiable human reaction."

Indeed not. But it's too bad that it was Nixon's reaction to accusations of criminal behavior against Colson, John Mitchell, and the like, rather than against lesser White House staff men who in earlier years were believed to be leaking information to the press — which is not as yet a crime. In the case of the leaks, however, kindly Nixon responded with wiretaps on White House aides, including some of Dr. Henry Kissinger's most highly placed men and one of Kissinger's close friends in the press.

If this suggests that there may be something wrong with kindly Nixon's sense of values, it is meant to, and there is. It is more than a little incredible that a president would be willing to tap his own staff men — when he knew such tapping was, at best, of questionable legality — to stop leaks, yet could not bring himself even to "grill" some of the most important members of his administration when they were accused of crimes. Even when it was tough Charles Colson, not the soft-headed liberal press, who was making the charge, kindly Nixon couldn't bear to put the heat on anybody close to him.

So it is not surprising that Nixon does not seem so kindly and forbearing to Morton Halperin, a former member of the Nixon national security staff, who was one of those whose telephones were tapped — in his case, for several months in 1969 and 1970, during which period one of those overheard using it was Daniel Ellsberg. Halperin apparently does not regard his former superior, Kissinger, as any more softhearted than Nixon; at any rate, Halperin is said to be ready to file suit, under the provision of the Omnibus Crime Act of 1968, against Kissinger, his former deputy, Alexander Haig, and perhaps Nixon himself, for $100 a day for each day the Halperin phone was tapped.

Here's hoping Halperin collects. Say what one will about national security, organized crime, and all the other catch phrases, wiretapping is a dirty business. It is eavesdropping. It is spying. It is an invasion of individual privacy. Used against one's own associates, it is a personal betrayal of what Charles Colson called "human reaction." It is, in addition, a grab-bag sort of weapon; whoever speaks on a tapped phone, about whatever intimate subject, is overheard and logged indiscriminately with the supposed target of this kind of surreptitious search.

In Canada, "tampering with telephones" has been so unthinkable . . . that a law against it didn't seem necessary to the average Canadian; a member of the Canadian Parliament said recently. So it ought to be everywhere; but alas! Even in Canada, that gentlest of nations, it now seems necessary to the government that there should be a law prohibiting every form of private wiretapping or bugging — but allowing the armed forces and the police, under certain conditions, to apply their sordid eavesdropping techniques. These are fatal loopholes.

The truth is that a little legal wiretapping and bugging is bound to lead to a lot that is either illegal or questionable. When the 1968 Congressional Crime Act prescribed court orders for wiretapping, say, organized crime, but left it unsettled whether a court order was required for so-called "national security" taps. Congress, in effect, invited the executive branch to move in with its Liddys and McCords. The results, not least, were the taps on such men as Morton Halperin and Henry Brandon, the respected correspondent of the London Sunday Times.

Now the Supreme Court has ruled out, generally speaking, such unauthorized "national security" taps; but in the meantime, much damage has been done — to Halperin among others — and an oppressive climate has been fostered in which wiretapping and bugging have become accepted tools of law and security. Thus, Rep. Sam Steiger of Arizona, in hot pursuit of a sports corporation he considers to be linked to organized crime, finds it only "unsavory" — not illegal — that one of his aides bugged a hotel room in San Diego. And that is only one example of such abuses undertaken in what is thought to be a "good cause."

This is an area that cries out for re-examination. Legal wiretapping, which Robert Kennedy once sponsored, is at best a limited and wasteful tool of law-enforcement. It requires considerable manpower and money for very small results; against organized crime, its use has been primarily in New York and New Jersey, and its results have been minimal, mostly having to do with gambling; in support of "national security," it has resulted in the capture of few real spies and the violation of the rights of untold thousands of American citizens.

Electronic eavesdropping, in short, is something Americans can quite easily do without; but with which they cannot live except in fear of abuse, excess and lack of any control, except the sort exercised by kindly Richard Nixon in his farcical "investigation" of the Watergate case.

Bombing Of Hospitals

WASHINGTON — Classified Cambodian documents, smuggled out of Phnom Penh, reveal that Cambodian battlefield commanders have been calling for bombing strikes and strafing attacks on communist field hospitals.

The documents don't specify whether American B-52s and F-111s, or the mosquito-like Cambodian T-28s supplied by the United States are supposed to attack the hospitals. American authorities insist that U.S. planes are barred from hitting hospitals and pagodas.

However, monitored radio messages from U.S. bomber pilots to their observation planes over Cambodia tell a more confusing story. We have examined seven pages of radio transcripts which, indeed, show the pilots genuinely try to avoid hitting pagodas and hospitals. But the pilots often aren't sure whether they are attacking friendly or communist troops.

"This target has numerous bunker positions," one bewildered pilot calls to his plane. "They told me in this same area are friendly troops that I worked (bombed or strafed) toward earlier this morning, so see what you can find out about that. . . I can't find out what the friendly situation is down there. . ."

The spotter assures the pilot that "this target was tapped by Blue Chip (approved) for us. . . Still unsure, the pilot replies: 'Okay, like I say, it looks all right. . . But like I said, those friendly who were down there earlier this morning within 500 meters. . .'"

The spotter checks and is back almost immediately with the orders for the bombing run. "Go ahead. . . 500 pounds maximum, no running east or west, don't hit any structures unless fired upon."

The raids on hospitals, which violate international law, are detailed in official messages written in French and labeled "extreme urgent . . . diffusion rest" — very urgent, restricted distribution.

One pinpoints a town named Phum Khyok in the "first military region" and lists four targets, three of them military. The fourth is identified as a "hospital with about 40 Viet Cong/North Vietnam health personnel." Specifies the Cambodian field commander: "Kindly transmit the order to carry out bombardments of (these) objectives."

A second message from Cambodia's "fourth military region" gives map coordinates for a "bombing and strafing" attack on "200 to 250 men, stocks, provisions, PC (command post) and hospital."

A highly-placed diplomat in Cambodia informs us that supervision of the joint Cambodian-U.S. Air Operations Center is entirely in American hands, along with most other air matters.

"The (Americans) tell the Cambodians what to do and the Cambodians do it," the diplomat reports. "The Cambodians couldn't possibly run the center by themselves."

When the Cambodian forces want a strike on a hospital, pagoda or shrine, the diplomat says, the United States refuses to do it, then secretly turns the assignment over to the Cambodian air force "which has no scruples at all, and will go ahead and bomb. . ."

Meanwhile, declares the diplomat, "the B-52s and F-111s are causing enormous civilian casualties (in) hundreds of villages. Just take a boat up the west bank of the Mekong. You will see destroyed villages. . . totally destroyed by bombing, not mortars. Every one of these targets. . . has been approved by Americans."

Documents in hand, my associate, Les Whitten, visited the Cambodian embassy here and spoke with officials at length. They did not deny that military commanders might call for strikes on hospitals in the heat of battle, particularly if the hospitals were being used by communist troops as gun emplacements.

Any bombing of hospitals is against Cambodian government policy, they said.

Congressional investigators have shown us some of their most recent studies on rising medical costs. The studies are not yet completed, but they already confirm what every sick American knows. Medical costs are way out of line.

Doctors like to blame high hospital costs on all the expensive medical equipment hospitals are now using. The truth is, however, that the biggest item on most hospital bills is the price of the room.

Another major problem is unnecessary surgery. Some surgeons, for example, will take out an appendix at the complaint of a bellyache.

The Nixon administration, meanwhile, is quietly preparing to give the Rand Corporation $50 million over the next five years to study alternative ways of handling a national health insurance program.

Critics of the study, liberals and conservatives alike, are howling that the study will be a waste of time and money. The study will try to measure how different kinds of health insurance plans affect the customers.

Army Guardsmen Donate Emergency Blood

SGT. JOHNSON. . . has blood taken by Mrs. Lois Whitefoot.

Members of locally based Army National Guard units gave blood Tuesday at the Community Blood Bank of Lancaster County. The call went out early Tuesday morning to the National Guard Headquarters in Lincoln for an emergency replacement of type A Positive blood.

The Community Blood Bank located at 620 No. 48th Street supplies blood for all Lancaster County hospitals. Administrative Director Dr. P. D. Duensing said that it is unusual that all the area hospitals would run low of this popular type of blood at the same time. When the Blood Bank was made aware of the shortage, they began to call for donors.

"The Nebraska National Guard has always been responsive to our needs," Dr. Duensing continued, "and we certainly appreciate the support they have given us."

Volunteering blood in this emergency situation were Sgt. I.C. George Johnson of Lincoln, Spec. 5 Carl Christensen of Dannebrog, S.Sgt. Maurice Densberger of Malcolm, Spec. 5 Randy Branch of Lincoln and 2nd Lt. Ron Nicodemus of Lincoln.

The Community Blood Bank was established in October 1968 by the Lancaster County Medical Society as a nonprofit all-volunteer organization. The 9,100 members contribute a minimum of one pint of blood per year as the only membership fee required. In return they receive as much free blood as needed for members of their family.

Trend Said Toward Separate Corrections

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—A nationwide trend to separate the functions of law enforcement and corrections at the county level is reported by Dr. Hubert Locke of the University of Nebraska at Omaha.

The dean of School of Public Affairs and Community Service made the statement after Douglas County Commissioner George Buglewicz had suggested such a separation.

Dr. Locke, a member of the State Crime Commission, was an assistant to the police commissioner in Detroit and has been on the board of the National Police Commission. He researched corrections programs in several states.

Buglewicz has said a bill will be introduced in the legislature next year to set up a separate department of corrections in Douglas County to remove jurisdiction over the jail from the sheriff's department.

Dr. Locke said his comments were not regarding Douglas County specifically. He said corrections officers and law enforcement officers have widely different functions, and it is a disservice to both groups to make them take on the other's job.

In the long run, he said, a corrections department will save money by reducing the rate of return to jail.

GOP Collects $23,575 From Roundup Dinner

Since Jan. 1, the party has received $48,854 and spent $36,978, the report showed.

The copy of the June 10 federal financial statement submitted to Washington was filed with the secretary of state's office.

Ed Board Finalizes Vacancy Procedures

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Board of Education Tuesday finalized procedures for filling board vacancies and then announced it would accept nominations till 5 p.m. Monday for names to be considered in the current search for a new member.

The names may be filed with either Supt. John Prasch or School Board President John Lux.

Those names plus as many as three suggested by each board member will be considered next Tuesday by the board in the first of two executive sessions to deliberate on the naming of a successor for Catherine Angle.

Mrs. Angle, who resigned effective June 30, participated in the process to establish a procedure but will not join in the discussions on the list of nominees.

The board said Tuesday it was seeking someone who:

- has the time to serve.
- has shown an interest in and support for public education.
- has children in school now or has children who attended the schools recently.
- has a capability for and has exercised civic leadership.

Tuesday's board decisions left standing previous tentative actions to limit to closed-door sessions early board discussion of potential board members.

But the board also decided to add a new item to make public the entire list of names suggested to the board or considered by the board from its own suggestions.

The procedure was adopted, after considerable discussion, on a 4 to 1 vote with Pearl Goldenstein dissenting. Absent at the time of the vote was Marvin Stewart.

Both Mrs. Goldenstein and Lux argued for more openness in the process, but Lux's objections appeared satisfied with the decision to release the names of the nominees.

Mrs. Goldenstein, on the other hand, said she would have preferred no executive session discussion on the matter.

"The purpose is to provide for a frank discussion among yourselves, not to hide anything," Prasch said.

As adopted, the procedure will be as follows:

- the board will accept nominations until Monday and then meeting Tuesday morning in executive session to add its own names to the list.
- at the same meeting, the board will restrict the list to 10 or less by written nominations from all the names suggested.
- dossiers will be completed on each of the remaining nominees, who will be contacted to see if they are willing to serve.
- at a subsequent executive session, the board will attempt to reach a consensus by written ballot until a majority of three board members agree on a single candidate.
- the names of all nominees will be made public after the adjournment of the second discussion.
- at a subsequent public meeting, the board will elect its new member by written ballot.

School Is Named For Anna Zeman

The Lincoln Board of Education Tuesday named a new school the Anna Zeman Elementary School in honor of a teacher who retired in 1968 after 40 years in the Lincoln system.

Miss Zeman, who was principal of Calvert Elementary School for 10 years, told the board it was "the children, the parents and all the dedicated teachers at Calvert who really made this possible."

Miss Zeman

The new building, under construction at 52nd and Claire, will replace several small annexes which are now providing relief for Calvert.

Long Service

Miss Zeman taught at Clinton School from 1928 to 1945, then served as principal at Clinton and Havelock Schools before going to Calvert Elementary.

In other matters at a regular meeting, the board heard from a group of about 30 Trendwood area residents, who asked the board to delay sale of a school site in the neighborhood to give the city a chance to acquire it for park or recreational purposes.

The board said it would consider the request after it has received bids for sale of the site and several other school properties.

Investment

Associate Supt. Robert Den Hartog told the board that the site, purchased in 1964 for about $25,000, has a school district investment totaling more than $71,000.

He noted that paving, lighting and utility costs had added another $46,000 to what the district had paid.

The board also decided to buy, for $102,000, a 40-acre site in west Lincoln for possible future use for an elementary school, a junior high or both.

The land, now owned by Helen Meyer, is bounded by South and Coddington Sts. The district owns a 10-acre site close to the new one, but the smaller one is not large enough for a junior high.

In other matters, the board:

- approved salary settlements averaging about 5.5% with technicians, food service workers and teacher aides and was told administrators have approved the offer made to them.
- agreed to a city plan for improving the 70th St. entrances to East High at a cost of about $31,000.
- approved a federal fund proposal for an Indian education project to help prevent dropouts, improve tutorial services and library resources and promote referrals to other community agencies.
- approved tuition levels of $1,110 for secondary students and $925 for elementary students for next year.

Lincoln Schools To Offer Special Reading Program

The Lincoln Board of Education Tuesday agreed that it should reaffirm that reading is "the basic priority in all Lincoln schools" and directed its staff to draw up plans to make a successful reading program available throughout the district by the fall of 1974.

The program, known as the Orton-Gillingham approach, is designed specifically to help children with so-called reading disabilities learn to read and spell.

Those are children of average or higher intelligence who don't learn to read via conventional teaching methods.

"May Be 10%"

"We may be talking about 10% of the total number of students in Lincoln, said school board member Catherine Angle, who also served on the task force which recommended the board action.

"For a while this program is going to be a 'rescue mission' for these youngsters," she said.

Associate Supt. Ronald Brandt of the school district's instructional division said he's aware of some professional objections to the recommendations of the reading disability task force, but he said he believes the positive aspects of Orton-Gillingham outweigh the negative ones.

Effective With Many

He said although the approach might not work with all students, it has been effective with many students in the few schools where it's been tried in the past three years.

Brandt also said since students with learning problems "have a special need for consistency," it's "important to establish a basic program systemwide."

Finally, said Brandt, many Lincoln teachers have been trained in the approach.

If other approaches are used successfully with some students, he said, they will be incorporated into the school's program in the future.

Line Item Ordered

Acting on the recommendation of Supt. John Prasch, the board adopted the basic recommendations of the task force and directed the district staff to include in the new year's budget a line item to handle the program.

The 30-member task force which studied the matter included both educators and a number of citizens from the community. Many of the laypersons were on hand to support the task force's recommendations.

In other instructional matters, Brandt gave the board a report on the status of trial programs for the coming year.

He said several widely used programs — including "Man: A Course of Study" and Tabla Social Studies had been removed from the list of "trial" approaches.

Two New Programs

And he said two new programs will be tested.

One, "Economics in Society," is an inquiry approach to modern economic issues. It will be used at East High.

Another, "Exploring Childhood," will be tested at Lincoln High. It gives students roles in working with young children and prepares them for adult responsibilities involving child welfare and care.

Brandt also warned the board that some teachers will be unhappy with his recommendation to buy for the AAAS Science program materials of Sigma Scientific Inc. rather than the Xerox-published materials written for AAAS originally.

Sigma's bid of $21,500 was about $7,000 less than the one supplied by Xerox.

Brandt said he expects teachers to be upset because Sigma's material is changed enough to avoid copyright law violations. The changes will necessitate some added teacher attention to part of the material to avoid student confusion, said Brandt.

Brandt said science consultant Dale Rathe had recommended purchase of the Xerox material.

AAAS Science, in use in the lower elementary grades in the past, will be used throughout the elementary schools this fall.

Two other complaints charging race discrimination in employment have been filed involving Omaha firms, and hearings have been set.

The Pleasant and Jones vs. Salvation Army complaint will be heard June 29 in Omaha, and the Smith vs. Continental Can complaint will be heard July 10. Both will be held in the Douglas County Courthouse.

Old, Poor Get Free Ride From Pilot Bus Program

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Kearney — Who says there's nothing free in the world except fresh air and advice?

Residents of Buffalo, Dawson and Gosper Counties are discovering that there is also Senlow. The unique bus line transports senior citizens and persons of low income — hence its name — totally without charge.

Funded by the Office of Economic Opportunity, the pilot project is the first of its kind in this region. It was started March 15 by Mid-Nebraska Community Action, Inc.

15 Communities

Two van-type buses, each accommodating a dozen passengers, are presently in use based in Kearney and Lexington. Together they serve 15 communities in Buffalo, Dawson and Gosper Counties. A third vehicle is to be added later for Franklin and Kearney Counties.

"We're averaging about seven passengers per day for each bus and everything is going real well," said Jim Case, director of transportation for the agency. "There are just a few bugs in scheduling to be worked out."

Medical appointments, visits to the court house and to other "points of necessity" are the main stops of a regular five-day schedule. The buses are also available for special Saturday-Sunday excursions.

Air conditioned and equipped with emergency telephones, the units also have hydraulic lift platforms at their back doors. Wheel chair passengers thus can be accommodated.

Except that it is free, Senlow is similar to a one-bus operation in Jefferson, Saline and Gage Counties. Organized through Blue Valley Community Action, Inc., that pioneering line is limited to riders who have paid membership fees. Nominal fares are charge.

Popularity Growing

It also is a system being eyed by transportation interests from throughout the nation. Although its passenger count was low initially, the Blue Valley bus reportedly has gained in popularity this spring.

Like Blue Valley, Senlow materialized at the instigation of potential users. Some 350 senior citizens attending a Kearney forum last year had placed transportation at the top of their list of needs.

Mrs. Margaret McMullen, Mid-State director, then spearheaded efforts for OEO financing. A $60,000 initial grant was approved last summer.

Case acknowledged that the new project could be in jeopardy due to the uncertain status of OEO. However, he said it is hoped the service will so prove itself that it will be perpetuated regardless.

"We feel that perhaps the counties would decide to pick up the service," said Case. "There's no question but what a vital need exists."

NRD Office Due In North Platte

North Platte (AP) — Beginning July 1, the Twin Platte Natural Resources District will open an office in North Platte. Kent O. Ft. Kearny Celebration Opens

Minden (AP) — A week-long celebration is under way to commemorate the 125th birthday of Ft. Kearny. A variety of programs will be held at the fort and at Minden during the week. U.S. Sen. Gale McGee, D-Wyo., will speak at a banquet in Minden Friday. State and national government officials are expected to attend a parade in Minden Saturday. The historic Army post was established in 1848 on the south side of the Platte River between Minden and Kearney.

Fremont Improvement Plans OK'd

Fremont (AP) — Fremont merchants voted to approve a proposed $464,000 downtown improvement plan. But the submitted plans were shelved pending federal funding of $200,000 to supplement property assessments and $65,432 in city monies. A decision on the federal funding is expected in about two months. The improvement plans call for new sidewalk and street paving, pedestrian lighting and corner plazas for 10 blocks of central business district.

Five Seeking Miss Stockgrower Title

North Platte (AP) — Five junior stockgrowers will vie for the title Miss Nebraska Stockgrower during the 84th annual Nebraska Stockgrowers Association convention this week. Candidates are Kathy Marie Votaw of Wellfleet, Connie Jo Nunn of Harrison, Kyrnn Keller of Bassett, Kay Brogan of Keystone and Anita Kaye Kime of Gordon. The convention opens Wednesday and continues through Friday. The new queen will be announced at a banquet Thursday night.

Seward Officially State July 4 City

By SAM THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Seward — Clad in red, white and blue and standing before a huge American flag, Clark Kolterman evidenced no surprise at his hometown's gubernatorial designation as Nebraska's July 4th city.

The proclamation was read at a luncheon here Tuesday by governor's aide Norman Otto and accepted by Kolterman, youthful past president of Seward's equally youthful July 4th committee.

"We're appreciative but a little impatient, I guess," said Kolterman, who has organized the Independence Day festivities in past years. "We proclaimed it years ago."

"Now It's Official"

"But now it is official," he added. "You feel better when you're doing it legally."

Wilber, Kolterman noted, is known as "Czech capital"; Deshler is the "broom capital"; Ogallala the "cowboy capital"; and Lincoln is the "state capital." "But I don't think any of them can hold a candle to our hometown of Seward."

A committee is attempting to keep the old-fashioned community flavor of Independence Day alive, Kolterman said. The Fourth in Seward is still a day when you can "kiss a beauty queen, smell burning fireworks or eat homemade ice cream," he added.

Kolterman said the event was initiated by Dick Stillman in an effort to revive the 1967 Seward Centennial. This year's chairman of the committee responsible for the annual summer spectacular is Kevin Keller. He replaced Roger Wright.

Good Neighbor

Kolterman's mother, Mrs. Don Kolterman, was awarded the Ak-Sar-Ben good neighbor award for her involvement in community affairs. The mother of four, Mrs. Kolterman has been active in Camp Fire Girls, Boy Scouts, American Legion Auxiliary and the Seward Youth Council.

She is past president of the Seward Woman's Club and the Lutheran Women's League; served as Seward Centennial chairman from 1963 to 1967; and has served as community betterment chairman, July Fourth committee member and city planning commissioner.

Like her son, Mrs. Kolterman wore red, white and blue for the occasion.

Attending the event from Lincoln with Otto were three former Seward residents now in state government: Department of Economic Development chief Stan Matzke; Roads Department deputy administrator Merle Reiling, and Roads Department training officer Kathy Baumach.

Capping the luncheon was a showing of a color film of a past Seward Fourth of July made by Concordia Teachers College artist-in-residence Reinhold Marxhausen.

Fall Kills Palmyra Workman

BROWNVILLE, Neb. (AP) — One workman was killed and another injured Tuesday when they fell from a scaffold at the Cooper Nuclear Station here, it was reported.

The dead man was identified as Roger Geismann of Palmyra. Another workman, Robert Oates of Beatrice, was reported in good condition at Nemaha County Hospital in Auburn.

Authorities said the men were repairing siding on the Nebraska Public Power District's turbine generator building when the scaffold apparently collapsed.

The men were employed by Midwest Industries, Inc., NPPD officials said.

Omaha Riverfront Pledge Is Received

Omaha (AP) — The John Madden Co. of Omaha has pledged riverfront development of $26 million to $30 million, if certain conditions are met, Mayor Edward Zorinsky said Tuesday.

The proposal would include two office buildings, condominiums, a marina and parking in an area at the east end of a proposed downtown linear park, the mayor said.

Zorinsky told members of the City Council of the pledge during a meeting in his office.

Zorinsky said 10 days ago that he wanted some written guarantees from private businesses or groups about riverfront development before he would commit large amounts of city money for development.

The Madden pledge is the first for the area.

Officials for the Madden firm said the offer is contingent upon several conditions, including:

- Relocation of railroad tracks now running through the area.
- Burial of utility lines now crossing through the tract and making accessible additional utilities.
- Appropriating city funds for a downtown park.

Loans Available To Farmers With Grain Storage Problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers in harvest areas where grain storage is short will be able to get emergency government loans to tide them over until the situation eases, the Agriculture Department said Tuesday.

The loans, to be repaid in full within 90 days, can include grain temporarily piled on the ground. Regular price support loans do not allow grain to be dumped in the open.

Officials said the loans will be made in amounts equal to 75 percent of the basic county price support loan rate for a specific commodity.

Glenn A. Weir, associate administrator of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said the first loans will most likely be to help wheat farmers faced with storage and transportation problems.

The loans, however, will also be made available for barley, oats, sorghum, rye and corn.

A record winter wheat crop of 13 billion bushels was forecast last week by the department. The harvest is currently under way in the Southern Plains, and Weir said he did not know of any critical situation at the present time.

Kathleen Feecken Elected Governor Of Girls State

Kathleen Feecken, 16, of North Platte was elected governor of Cornhusker Girls State in balloting Tuesday.

Campaigning on a Federal Party platform that emphasized tax reform, Kathleen defeated National Party nominee, Lauren Green of Omaha.

Acknowledging the assistance she received from fellow party members during the campaign, Kathleen said, "I'm looking forward to all the duties I have to fulfill" during the remaining days of Girls State.

She said that she believed it was her stand on the tax issue that was primarily responsible for her victory.

The tax reforms she advocated dealt primarily with assessments related to the funding of public schools.

Kathleen Feecken

"Nebraska has the opportunity to advance in education," she stated, and she added that a fairer tax system would help to make this possibility a reality.

During the campaign, she also emphasized the importance of citizen awareness with regard to the workings of government. The dissemination of more information by public agencies, and the inclusion of required government classes in all public schools are two ways in which she feels the goal of an informed citizenry could be attained.

Taking a stand on the controversial question of abortion — an issue that was debated but not included in the Federal Party platform — the newly-elected governor stated that she feels the states should not make it illegal.

There are certain areas in which "the law shouldn't govern peoples' morals," she said. "I believe that (abortion) should be left up to individual choice."

Tuesday's Girls State agenda also included speeches by State Sen. Ernie Chambers of Omaha, and Harris R. Owens, executive director of the Commission on Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice.

Kathleen and the other officials elected Tuesday will be inaugurated during ceremonies scheduled to take place this afternoon.

The remainder of the state officers include: Debra Daberkow of West Point, lieutenant governor; Susan Koenig of Omaha, secretary of state; Linda Logan of Omaha, state treasurer; Pamela Pullen of North Platte, state auditor; Debra H. Sater of Omaha, attorney general; and Penny Baker of Cedar Creek, Jane Bonebrake of Nebraska City, Sharon Jane Fritz of Waco, Susan Patterson of Weeping Water, and Carol Jean Meyer of Wilcox, public service commissioners.

Boys State Participants Greet State Solons With Enthusiasm

While the two gubernatorial candidates for the 1973 Cornhusker Boys State stumped quietly Tuesday, the 400 delegates convened their Supreme Court, district courts and State Legislature.

In the afternoon session, the Boys Staters greeted Nebraska state senators with enthusiasm after opening remarks by Lt. Gov. Frank Marsh.

The delegates broke up into town meetings and grilled the legislators on the workings of state government and picked their heads on current legislative issues.

The senators included Jules Burbach of Crofton, Loran Schmit of Bellwood, Wally Barnett of Lincoln, Frank Lewis of Bellevue and former state Sen. George Gerdes of Alliance.

Meanwhile, Dan Roh, the Federalist of Abie, and Tony Naughtin, Nationalist of Omaha, were campaigning on a one-to-one basis in the mock governmental state. One will be elected governor in the general election Thursday.

Naughtin said most of the Nationalists warned to the party plank recommending an advisory board of present and past Boys Staters to work with the sponsoring American Legion to improve the program.

"People helping with the campaign tell me it's pretty well liked that we have farm issues as the top priority on our platform," Naughtin said.

Roh, too, said "Farm issues are our top priority." He said his Federalist Party debated hotly the issue of fuel allocations to farmers.

Two Asked To Quit After Scotts Bluff Jail Incidents

Gering (AP) — Two men accused of mistreating prisoners at the Scotts Bluff County Jail have been asked to resign their jobs effective July 1.

Scotts Bluff County Sheriff Jim Miller, who retires July 1, said he asked jailer Wade Fowler and dispatcher Rick Robinson to resign.

Miller said his action followed complaints from prisoners.

One protest involved a five-day hunger strike by prisoner Everett Friel.

Friel said he began his strike

Roh said he believes "the tax distribution to education needs reform."

Naughtin agreed: "Our biggest gripe against the property tax is that it's regressive and hurts the low income people."

Roh said he puts more stress on the income tax and would "make more study of the loopholes." The property tax, he said, "hurts the farmer and landowner — the people that have to reinvest to stay in business."

The 1973 gubernatorial winner will be installed before Boys State graduation Friday, and will return next year to preside over the 1974 session.

Presiding Gov. Vaughn Burkholder of Schuyler — elected in 1972 — said he is pleased with the experimental revision, implemented this year. "It gives the Boys Staters much more of a chance to observe the candidates" for governor, he said, and allows the presiding governor more time for his duties.

While the last of the appointive offices were being filled Tuesday, Boys State legislators introduced three bills.

John Streufert of Seward submitted a proposal to lower the age of majority to 18.

Another bill introduced would establish a commission to study state aid to relieve local property taxes and their relation to educational support.

That bill states the commission would derive its funds from state income taxes, and that the state sales tax could not be increased more than one-half per cent.

He said he quit the hunger strike Sunday because Miller agreed to investigate charges of harassment.

Miller said his decision to investigate the matter had nothing to do with a suit Friel threatened to file against jail employees.

Miller said he has asked Fowler and Robinson to remain silent about their dismissals. Both men deny Miller made such a request.

'Justice Will Prevail'

Fort Worth, Tex. (UPI) — Southern Presbyterian General Assembly delegates, arguing that "justice will prevail" without the churches' help, have defeated two resolutions which demanded that President Nixon give full disclosure of any presidential knowledge or involvement with the Watergate case.

The bill also stipulates that school districts would retain their rights to raise their property tax rates and to spend the appropriations as they see fit.

Tom Dobbe of Lindsay introduced a bill which would abolish capital punishment in the state.

While more bills were being considered, one which would legalize the sale and distribution of heroin by state government went into committee. The intent of the bill was to aid in medical treatment, it was reported.

Wednesday the Boys Staters will meet with state officers and officials, in addition to holding more sessions of the State Legislature, Supreme Court and district courts.

Macau — Portuguese Macau is 42 water miles from Hong Kong, a little more than an hour on a high-speed hydrofoil. We used to come over here on the steamer, Tak Shing. It took three hours — the bridge was framed with barb-wire to discourage any pirate takeover.

We went over the other day. Hong Kong, humid and warm, felt almost cool after Bangkok, and the ride over the blue water, among green islands, is breezy.

Macau is 400 years old. It looks like a piece of old Lisbon. Mediterranean villas in pinks and browns and blues. A tree-lined waterfront avenue that might have been lifted from the road to Cascais.

The officials are Portuguese. The people are 99 of 100 Chinese. Macau edges on Red China. There's a brisk traffic at the border. Peasants come across carrying headloads of produce. A half dozen ducks slung over the shoulder, all of them yelling "murder".

Peking calls the political tune here.

As anyone who watches 1930 movies on the late late show knows, Macau is Sin City East. Filled with Oriental gangsters — (being busted by Clark Gable) — and opium dens and slick chicks with hearts of Oriental gold.

Then there's gambling. Of all the film negatives, this is the one that's really positive.

Gambling used to be in the Central Hotel. It was several stories high with rooms around a light well.

Gambling was on the lowest floor. It was mostly fan tan. The dealer pushes a couple of hundred coffee beans on a table. Covers the center of the pile with a dish.

He scoops away all left outside the dish. Those under the dish are raked away four at a time. The win is made by betting how many will be left at the last rake: One, two, three or zero.

The Central — we let our bets down the lightwell in wicker baskets — is gone. The gambling has gone Western. Blackjack is the favorite, you can hardly get a seat from night to eight in the morning.

Lowest bet in the casino-hotel Lisboa is $10 Hong Kong, $2 U.S. (The Macau dollar exchanges equally with the HK dollar.)

There's roulette, mostly favored by Westerners. Chinese are the main gamblers and they figured out immediately that roulette is $ 5/19 against the player.

Blackjack odds are against you, but Nevada gamblers tell me you can't say exact odds. They said: "It depends on how you play the game."

IGA VALUE LEADER QUALITY AND SAVINGS ON MEATS!!

TENDERIZERS

Whatever the cut, however it is prepared, all meat you cook should be tender—easy to cut and easy to eat. How can you make sure the meat you serve is tender, even the less-expensive cuts? The best way is to buy the best-quality P.S. beef available. For those extra-special occasions, such as Father's Day when economy is not the prime factor, select those tender loin and rib steaks and roasts. But, when economy is important, choose from the less-tender cuts. Less-tender cuts have more connective tissue and come from parts of the animal which had more direct exercise.

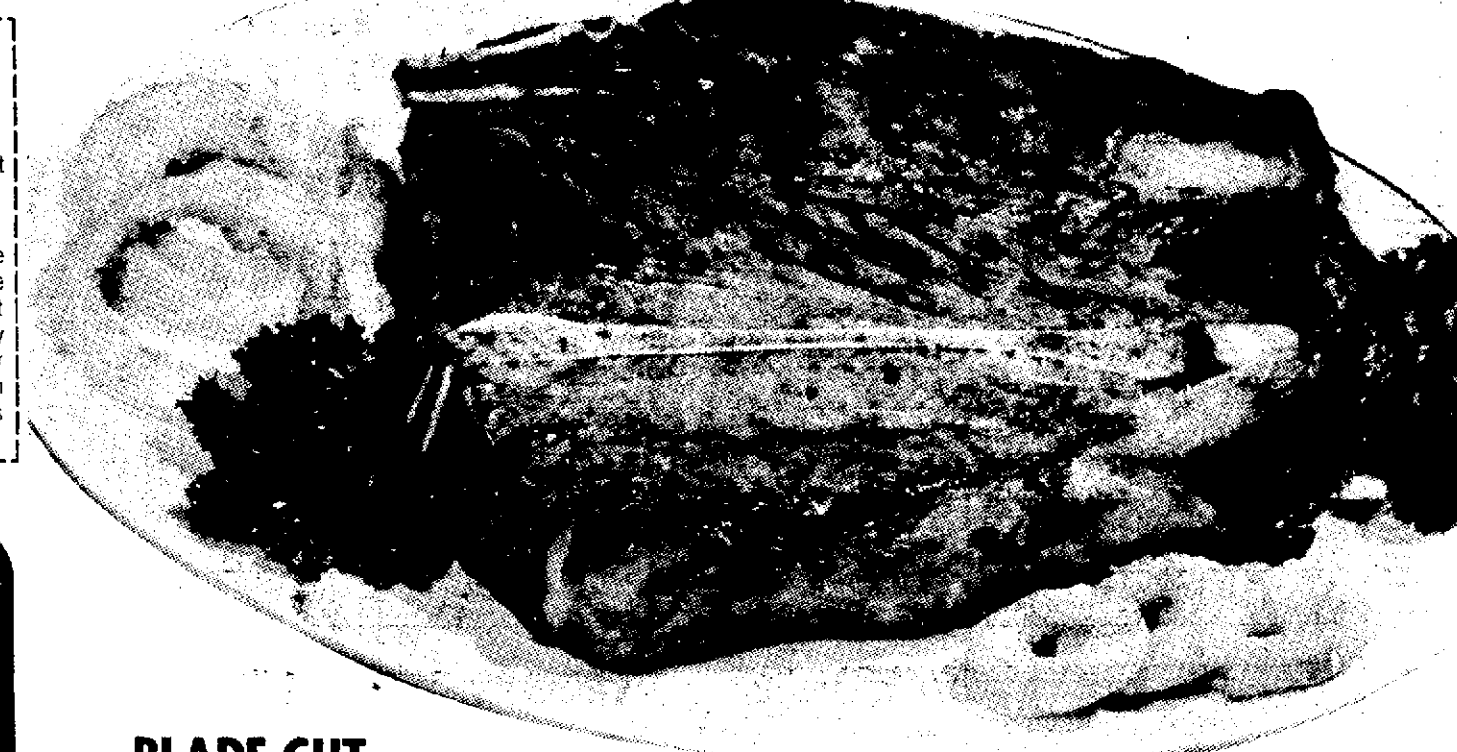

In addition to learning about the locations of cuts of meat and proper cooking methods, you can help tenderize some cuts before cooking. One method is to marinate, which adds flavor as it aids tenderizing. Marinades traditionally contain an acidic ingredient, salad oil and seasonings. Many people feel it is the acidic reaction on the meat which helps soften the connective tissue. Remember, since marinades are acidic, use only glass, stainless steel or plastic to marinate the meat. If the meat is to be marinated for more than a couple of hours, it should be covered and refrigerated.

Treat Dad with T.L.C. (tender loving care) this Father's Day and serve him Barbequed Brisket—he'll love it!

2 tbs. minced onion
3-4 lbs. boneless beef brisket
2 tsp. chili powder
1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. Hickory salt
1/4 tsp. pepper
meat tenderizer
Combine all ingredients except tenderizer and meat. Sprinkle brisket with tenderizer and piece with fork at 1" intervals. Place in glass baking dish and pour marinade over meat. Cover and let stand at least 3 hours. Drain meat, reserving marinade. Pat dry and cook over hot coals about 25 minutes on each side for medium, basting with marinade. You may also bake the meat in the marinade at 275 degrees for 3-4 hours. Slice brisket across grain.

Municipal Water Supplies Being Tested For Fluoridation

By The Associated Press

A statewide survey is now being done of all municipal water supplies in Nebraska to determine the level of natural fluoridation in the water, a state official said Tuesday.

The survey is the first step in the implementation of LB449, a bill enacted into law by the 1973 legislature to require all municipalities to fluoridate their water.

Although the bill does not become effective until Sept. 2 and the deadline for fluoridation is not until Jan. 1, 1975, the state Health Department survey is already under way, said Dr. Mark Muffley, head of the dental health division of the department.

The survey will cover more than 450 municipalities and is expected to take several months to complete, he explained.

The last such survey, three years ago, showed that about 50 municipalities needed no fluoridation because the natural fluoride content was high enough to achieve the objective of fighting tooth decay.

Before LB449 was enacted, 12 municipalities fluoridated their water, including Lincoln and Omaha.

The new law does not require a specific amount of fluoridation but Muffley said current standards call for 7-10 parts per million.

Since the law was passed, the city of North Platte has asked for a check on the city water supply but a test determined the water contained enough natural fluoride to make artificial fluoridation unnecessary.

LB449, backed by the Nebraska Dental Association, permits a municipality not to have to fluoridate if its voters use the initiative process to obtain an ordinance prohibiting fluoridation.

Until the survey is completed, Muffley said, the state Health Department does not plan to develop any specific program for implementing LB449.

The new law provides that the cost of the program will be borne by the local political subdivision, although Muffley said the cost is not particularly large.

Hastings Studies Community Center

Hastings (AP) — The Hastings City Council Monday night appropriated $3,500 in revenue-sharing funds to facilitate the study of the need for a community center.

The firm of Clark, Enersen and Associates of Lincoln will conduct the study.

Reserves Estimated

Tehran, Iran (AP) — Reza Fallah, vice chairman of the National Iranian Oil Co. estimated that Iran had known gas reserves equivalent to 45 billion barrels of crude oil.

Points to be included are the disposition of the existing city auditorium, a proposed site for the construction of a new community center, cost estimates for the construction and finance and management of the center if it is constructed.

A committee appointed by Mayor D.W. "Monte" Malouf has been considering the need for such a center since January and representatives of that committee requested the $3,500.

In another main item, free parking in downtown Hastings gained another year of life when the council voted to renew Resolution 478 until July 1, 1974. The resolution suspends the use of parking meters but retains the right to reinstall them as required by bond ordinance.

No Action Taken On Storage Tank

Board Awaits Report

Lancaster County commissioners Tuesday didn't take action on a change of zone request to permit construction of an anhydrous ammonia storage tank because they received no report from the Planning Commission.

Board Hears Request For RSVP Plan

Lancaster County commissioners, sitting as a welfare board, took no action Tuesday on a request to submit a proposal for federal funding of a Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP).

Welfare Director J. Earle Trabert told the board that it is a "very good program" and that he felt it is worthy of taking on for a year to see how it works out.

It was explained that the program gives persons 60 years of age or older an opportunity to offer volunteer service to their community.

The commissioners were told that no county money would be involved except in furnishing space for the office.

Binning Sees Good Year For First Greatwest Corp.

The First Greatwest Corp. in Lincoln probably will record greater acquisition and growth in 1973 than in any other year. John H. Binning, corporation president, told stockholders at an annual meeting Tuesday.

Binning praised the leaders of the corporation's subsidiary companies and the companies themselves and said he thought the potential for growth within the corporation's operating area was unlimited.

As part of the election of corporation directors, Binning was re-elected for a one-year term.

Elected new corporation directors were: Dale C. Firstman, director and president of First Mid America Inc., Lincoln, elected for a three-year term; Charles J. Burmeister, director, executive vice president and secretary of First Mid America Inc., elected for a two-year term; and Richard A. Westcott, director and executive vice president of First Mid America Inc., elected for a two-year term.

Re-elected to three-year terms were: A. P. George, chairman of the board, N. P. Doud Jr. Co., Omaha; Robert H. Rydman, chairman, president and director of Lincoln Benefit Life Co.; W. R. Schaefer, general manager of Schaefer Farms, Inc., Omaha; and J. Stratman, president and director of Protective Fire and Casualty Co., Seward.

In addition, the First Greatwest Corp. board of directors includes: Wayne L. Dornberger, director and president of Dornberger Insurance Co., Sioux Falls, S.D.; C. F. Fitch, treasurer and director of Great West Casualty Co., owner of Fitch & Co. Sioux City, Iowa; Simon Korshoj, president of Korshoj Construction Co., Blair; Floyd W. Potthman, owner of Potthman Motor Co., Auburn; Ray Peake, president of Peake Inc. and Peake Transport Services Inc., Chester; Joe W. Morten, chairman of the board and director of First Greatwest Corp.; president and director of Great West Casualty Co. and Joe Morten & Son Inc., South Sioux City; and H. A. Zethren, retired First Greatwest Corp. president.

Answer Conflicts With Regents' Pay Petition

Allegations conflicting with some of those made by the University of Nebraska Board of Regents were made in an answer and counterclaim filed Tuesday in U.S. District Court in Lincoln.

The action came in response to a petition filed by the Board of Regents seeking a declaratory judgment that an "affirmative action program" allegedly

World-Herald, Stereotypers Sign Contract

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—The Omaha World-Herald and Local 24 of the International Stereotypers and Electrotypes Union signed a three-year contract Tuesday, the company said.

Laurance R. Hoagland, senior vice-president of the newspaper, said the contract's wage provisions are within the guidelines of Phase 3.

Hoagland said the contract guarantees journeymen stereotypers and apprentices on the payroll as of Jan. 1, 1973, "that they will not be laid off to reduce the work force because of the introduction of new machinery or production devices."

The stereotypers union is one of six unions at the World-Herald which have continued working during a labor dispute involving Local 190 of the International Typographical Union, which represents some 160 printers. Most union members walked off the job May 4.

Trained Health Care Staff Urged

Kansas City (AP) — Massive transfusions of money won't cure the nation's health care ills, the chairman of the American College of Hospital Administrators said Tuesday.

The key to solving the problem is trained manpower, William N. Wallace told a meeting at the Mid-West Health Care Congress.

He told conferees from Arkansas, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Wyoming it does little good to build new facilities and fill them with the latest equipment if there is no one to man them.

Wallace, president of United Hospitals, St. Paul, Minn., said he favors a regionalization concept with consolidation of equipment and services.

Earlier, John A. McMahan, president of the American Hospital Association, told the group his association might file lawsuits over some provisions of Phase 3 of President Nixon's economic policy.

During Phase 2, hospitals, like other industries, focused on keeping costs down through more efficient methods. However, he said since January when Phase 3 took effect, hospital suppliers have been allowed to increase prices while hospitals have had their fees frozen at 1972 levels.

Pershing Auditorium Board OKs $371,726 Budget For '73-74

The Pershing Auditorium Board Tuesday approved a proposed $371,726 budget for fiscal 1973-74.

The budget represents a 19% increase over this year's approved $312,195 budget.

The major increases in the proposed budget, which must now go to the mayor and City Council for final approval, are in wages and capital improvements.

Pay Hikes
The board is recommending a $6,339 increase in salaries to $185,217.

Additionally, the board is recommending that the capital improvement budget be hiked from this year's $19,170 to $60,980.

Proposed capital improvement projects include:

— $20,000 for carpeting the outer lobby and concourses.
— $3,500 for refurbishing several meeting rooms.

— $5,500 for repair of 8,200 square feet of roof.

New Roof
Auditorium manager Ike Hoig pointed out that the 17-year-old roof will need complete replacement within the next several years. He suggested that the board consider placing a certain amount of money in escrow to save for the repairs, which could run around $50,000.

The board decided to omit $30,000 budgeted for installation of an overhead sprinkler system in the auditorium's basement.

That sprinkler system is being recommended by the Fire Department as a condition of approval of the liquor license for the auditorium.

State OK Needed
The City Council has approved the license. Final approval now is needed from the State Liquor Control Commission.

Hoig suggested that the board seek federal revenue sharing funds to pay for the sprinkler system.

In other action the board authorized Hoig to look into hiring an architectural firm to draw up plans for remodeling and enlarging the auditorium.

As outlined by Hoig, the remodeling would result in increased meeting and banquet space, plus the addition of a small theater on the second floor to seat 400 people.

The addition of larger meeting rooms would enable groups who now cannot afford to rent the auditorium's rental fee to rent out such smaller space, Hoig told the board.

Orientation Slated For NWU Students, Parents

A first taste of the college experience at Nebraska Wesleyan University is scheduled for more than 150 students and their parents beginning Thursday.

They will attend a two-day mini-term to meet with academic advisors and other college officials to plan their first-year programs, according to Dr. Milton Evans, vice president for administration.

Testing programs in foreign languages, chemistry, biology and mathematics are scheduled for Thursday morning in which students may earn credit or advanced standing, according to their individual abilities, Evans said.

NWU President Vance Rogers will address a Thursday noon luncheon and welcome the new students and parents to the campus. Sessions with academic advisors are planned for Thursday afternoon and all day Friday for the students to arrange fall schedules.

Thursday evening, NWU students will have a "rap" session with new students in the dormitories, and faculty members will hold similar sessions for parents attending the mini-term to let them air questions about the college experience, Evans said.

Dr. Frederick Blumer, vice president for academic affairs, will address a Thursday evening supper, outlining various academic opportunities available.

New students who do not participate in this orientation meeting will attend similar sessions August 23-24, Evans said.

New Name, Composition OKd For Health Council

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Hospital and Health Council took on a new name and new membership guidelines Tuesday with adoption of a number of bylaw changes.

The new name is the Lancaster County Health Planning Council and the new membership guidelines will insure broader council representation from health care providers.

The discussions that led to Tuesday's changes began several weeks ago when one of the consumer or lay representatives on the council suggested a reorganization to provide seats for more non-hospital and non-physician representatives.

Woman Still Free
CAGLIARI, Italy (AP) — A Sardinian woman convicted of embezzlement has avoided serving a two-month jail sentence for the past three years by getting pregnant three times. The latest child was her tenth. Under Italian law, women convicted of minor crimes cannot be jailed while pregnant or for six months after the birth of the baby.

Membership has included six representatives of three hospitals — Lincoln General, Bryan Memorial and St. Elizabeth — and three from the County Medical Society.

In the discussions following the original proposal, the medical society urged the council not to appoint any of its members as its representatives, but to call on the society for consultation on particular issues instead.

Tuesday's action retained one physician of the council's choice, plus administrators of the three hospitals.

It also said one of the 11 health provider seats should go to a representative of local government and said the remaining six provider seats should be spread among other health care providers.

Seats Freed
The changes will free enough seats to permit representation from such providers as nurses, nursing homes, dentists and other professionals.

Current membership, other than the hospital representatives and physicians, has included one representative each from the Capital Association for Retarded Children and the Lincoln Council on Alcoholism and Drugs.

The bylaws adopted Tuesday leave the total number of members at 24, giving consumers a 13-member majority on the council.

Most of the discussion on the changes revolved around physician representation.

A motion to ask the medical society to appoint the physician member, despite the society's wishes otherwise, was defeated.

VA Hospital Plea
The council also heard a plea from Howard Ruppen, director of the Lincoln VA Hospital, for provider representation from the federal hospital.

"We are as much a part of the community as anything," said Ruppen. "We have as much right to be on the board as anybody."

But John Angle, council chairman, suggested the VA Hospital could not be seen as the same as the other three in terms of its role in the community and in community-based health planning.

And William Joern, council executive director, suggested that the VA Hospital is a regional facility that should make its request for representation to the Southeast Nebraska Health Planning Council, parent body to the Lancaster group.

"I'm making my approach to this group," Ruppen replied.

Ruling Issued On Work-Related Expenses

U.S. District Judge Warren K. Urbom has ruled that the State Welfare Department must consider work-related expenses over $25 per month when computing assistance payments for welfare recipients.

Urbom earlier had ruled that the State Welfare Department regulations limiting the work-related expense allowance to a standard $25 violated federal law.

Urbom has now declared those regulations void. However, he noted that the welfare department is not barred from using the $25 standard as long as welfare applicants or recipients are informed of their right to have expenses over $25 a month considered during the computation of assistance payments.

The order came in response to a suit filed in May, 1972 by Fred Anderson on behalf of his daughters Janice and Jeanette and his son Fred Jr. as a class action.

Anderson, a widower and a custodian at the Offutt Air Force claimed in the suit that his work-related expenses totaled $386.62 per month, but that he was only allowed to claim the $25.

Urbom granted a 30-day stay of the order to allow the State Welfare Department to make an appeal. He also said he had concluded that no retroactive payment of benefits should or could be ordered by the court.

Air Guard To Trim Jet Noise

The Nebraska Air National Guard will soon have a noise suppressor installed to minimize jet engine noise during ground maintenance power checks.

Local Air National Guard officials insisted that a jet engine noise suppressor be installed almost as a condition of accepting the RFAC.

The special taxiway and concrete apron will cost $187,000 and the two noise suppressors mounted on this pad are each valued at more than $190,000.

NBC Acquires Schweser

An agreement for the acquisition of the Robert E. Schweser Company, Inc., of Omaha by the National Bank of Commerce (NBC) in Lincoln was announced Tuesday.

The Schweser Company is an investment banking firm which specializes in underwriting municipal bonds and providing financial consultation to governmental subdivisions.

In addition to Omaha, it has offices in Albuquerque, N.M., and Des Moines, Iowa.

The acquisition, approved earlier by the U.S. Comptroller of Currency, was authorized by the NBC board Tuesday.

It is expected that under the agreement up to 48,125 shares of NBC will be issued for the Schweser stock.

Schweser president Leonard L. Lawrence said the company will continue offices in Omaha but will move its corporate headquarters to Lincoln.

The acquisition, effective at the end of June, will add to the NBC objective of becoming "a total financial institution." NBC president Paul J. Amen of Lincoln said

Famous Voices Help Lure Travelers

By The Associated Press
The voices of celebrities Henry Fonda, Dick Cavett and Gordon MacRae are helping lure travelers to Nebraska's points of interest these days.

The three have narrated announcements promoting travel and vacation opportunities in Nebraska, being played over radio stations throughout the state as a public service.

The Department of Economic Development, the state's tourism promotion agency, arranged for the spot announcements, as well as others provided radio and television stations.

In cooperation with the Department of Roads and the Nebraska Broadcasters Association, the travel division instituted a Nebraska vacation network last year as a means of communicating with tourists.

ACTION LINE

Or Write P.O. Box 81669, Lincoln, NE 68501

We recently purchased some infant's clothing, during a sale at Richman Gorman's in Lincoln. When we got home, we discovered a small label that said the clothing didn't meet federal standards. Is it legal to sell flammable clothing for small children?
—Concerned Parent, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: It will be, as long as there is a label "prominently, permanently and conspicuously displayed", for the next six weeks, according to a Federal Trade Commission spokesman in Kansas City.

John McBride, of the FTC, said an amendment to the Flammable Fabrics Act allowed manufacturers one year to adjust to new federal standards that prohibit the sale of this type of product.

The grace period expires July 29, 1973 and past this date only products that meet the standards may be sold. By then, retailers will be able to obtain clothing meeting the standards.

A new federal agency is being established for consumer protection. The Consumer Product Safety Commission will be responsible for enforcement. Until the new agency takes over, the law is under the jurisdiction of the Federal Trade Commission.

While hiking through Wilderness Park, we came upon a sign that had the word Epworth on it. Other than a clue about a washed out bridge we couldn't find anything out about this. Can you give us any additional information about the origin of the sign?
—Curious, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: At one time this land was the site of Epworth Park, which was a private park in the early 1900's.

Don Smith, City Parks and Recreation Dept. Director, said a stone entranceway still exists, although it is in a rundown condition. He said before the channel of Salt Creek was changed it used to form an island in the park and picnickers could cross a bridge to get to the island.

Smith said the land was owned by the late Arnett Folsom, who donated the land to the city in his will. This was the second parcel of land to become part of Wilderness Park.

I sent in an order for some Valentine cards in December of 1972. The cards arrived along with a sales kit that I did not order. The Midwest Card Co. sent a bill that I was supposed to pay in March. I wrote them and said I would return the sales kit at their cost, but all I've received in answer is another bill, can you help me?
—P. H., Crete

ACTION LINE: We contacted Nan Holliday in the Midwest Card Co.'s customer relations department and your problem will be solved.

Ms. Holliday said that most of their items are sent out by United Parcel Service and she will contact that company to pick up the sales kit at your residence. There will be no cost to you in returning the unwanted merchandise and you won't be receiving any more bills.

I need some assistance in getting a refund from a Connecticut bicycle manufacturer by the name of Halco. In a May 11 phone conversation a company spokesman said I would receive a letter in the next week telling me where I can send the bicycle so that I can get a refund. To date I have heard nothing.
—M. S., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: The company said you should have received the letter by now.

However, if the letter hasn't arrived, the address to send the bicycle to is: Spotts International, 1300 Highway 8, St. Paul, Minnesota.

The person to get in touch with at Halco, in Connecticut, if some further problems might arise, is Nancy Arnold.

My neighbor has a hedge along my driveway which blocks my view when I'm backing out. There is a swimming pool across the street and many children in the area. Is there an ordinance that would require her to trim it, since she refuses every time I ask her to?
—Mrs. L. G., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: City Attorney Dick Wood said there are two possible courses of action.

If the hedge is in the public right of way and obstructs your view of the street then you can notify the Public Works Dept. and the matter will be taken care of.

However, if the hedge is entirely located within private property, Wood said this would be a private legal matter and you would have to seek private counsel.

For your own information, the public right of way will generally extend about four feet beyond the sidewalk.

I ordered an eight-track stereo tape called Country Gospel, through an ad I saw on KETV in Omaha. The check for the tape was sent in, in January but I still haven't received my order. There may be an address problem now, because I've gotten married in the meantime.

ACTION LINE: This particular tape is handled by the ATS company of Omaha in conjunction with KETV.

We contacted the manager of the firm, Rick Prevett, and he will get in touch with the supplier. Prevett said if the record has been sent out, they will send another if it was lost in the mails. If it hasn't been sent out, the order will be filled immediately.

You should be getting the tape in the next week to 10 days and under your new name and address.

What difference would it make in a female hunting dog if it is spayed as soon as possible, rather than waiting until after the first litter?

—B. K., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: If you're concerned about the appearance of the dog it's better to have the animal spayed before it has had a litter.

Dr. R. C. Groff, a Lincoln veterinarian, said the time a dog is spayed will have no effect on the dog's hunting ability, but that the animal will look nicer if it's spayed as soon as possible.

Dr. Groff said a dog can be spayed as early as three months but that vets usually wait until the animal is five months old. He said there's no hurry since dogs usually don't get into heat until they're about seven months old.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Wednesday

When Virgo undertakes an assignment, it usually is all the way, not lukewarm, not half and no shortcuts. This being so, Virgo seldom receives as much compensation for a job as might be deserved. Virgo performs a service and it is useful, beneficial and there seldom are questions about hours, rest periods, coffee breaks. Virgo is a worker. Virgo is knowledgeable about health and cleanliness. Virgo can be antagonized by Gemini and Sagittarius. Virgo is attracted to Pisces but it is often a case of opposites being drawn to each other. Virgo makes money with Libra, love to Leo and Capricorn, harmonizes with Cancer, Scorpio and Taurus.

Tarances are featured, whether connected with travel or correspondence. Improve communications. Be sure that what you say and write is properly interpreted. Leo, Aquarius and Scorpio persons are in picture.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Test theories. Applies to personal and professional endeavors. Probe mysteries. Ask questions. Answers are available. Mate, partner may be reluctant to disclose all where money matters are concerned. Be persistent.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Accent is on cementing relationship with mate, other close family members. Let others have their say. Build bridge of goodwill. Maintain low profile. Do more listening than asserting. Taurus, Libra individuals are involved.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Maintain balance. Inner calm now is essential. Don't attempt to force issues. Obtain valid hint from Gemini message. Take things slow and easy. You may soon be changing your mind about situations, persons.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Creative resources are featured. Member of opposite sex finds you attractive and makes no secret of it. Welcome chance for change, travel, variety. Stick to your own style. You will be a winner!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be frank. Don't placate one who constantly sings blues, harrows and breaks promises. Know when a relationship is finished. Don't punish yourself. Start building or rebuilding on solid base. Separate fact from wishful thinking.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Short trip could be featured in connection with relative or visit. You receive new hope. Where there was despair, there now can be optimism. New contacts and new lease on life — these are featured.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): By playing hunch, you gain in monetary matters. Give full play to intuitive intellect. Heed your own counsel. Refuse to be bullied. Aquarius, Leo persons could play prominent roles. Pay and collect. Check prices and values.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Lunar cycle coincides with time for fresh starts, meaningful contacts and relationships. Take initiative. Highlight personality. Permit personal magnetism to flow. Leo is likely to be in picture.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Recent effort is due to pay dividends. Stick to prescribed course. Steady approach brings constructive results. Accent is on the hidden, secrets, clandestine meeting. Aura of romance surrounds activities.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Emphasis is on friends, desires, ways of fulfilling goals. Changes due but they will be pleasant and could include member of opposite sex. Gemini, Virgo persons could play important roles. Analyze motives.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You are relied on, depended upon, given more responsibility. Prestige quotient rises. But remember obligations to family as well as to professional associates. Seek harmony at home. Otherwise, efforts in other directions prove meaningless.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you can be a contradiction — practical one moment, restless and flighty the next — but always basically direct. You are honest, at times brutally frank. This year social life has improved and so have professional opportunities. In December, you may be considering domestic adjustment or residence change. You draw to you many born under Leo, Aquarius and Scorpio.

City Council Hears Revenue Sharing Ideas

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

A dozen community groups petitioned the City Council and mayor for a piece of the federal revenue sharing pie of which Lincoln is slated to receive $4.5 million over a two-and-a-half year period.

Close to 200 citizens filled the City Council chambers Tuesday night requesting more than $1 million to fund human service type programs.

It was evident that federal cut-backs in funding or complete deletion of federal programs prompted a number of groups to get in line for city support.

However, the City Council will have the final at budget time say as to who gets what and how much.

To date the city has received three general revenue sharing entitlements, totaling $2.6 million.

Going to bat first, Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf outlined his proposals for spending the city's third check totaling $954,141. That list centered on funding capital improvements and operations and maintenance. The only person supporting such capital improvement projects was J. H. Hopkins, representing the East Lincoln Business and Professional Association.

He urged council support for the mayor's plan to hire and equip 20 more police officers and to construct a new fire station in east Lincoln.

Organizations vying for a share of the revenue sharing package included:

—$41,720 for the Capital Association of Retarded Children to replace federal funding which has been terminated, according to Leola Novak.

—$175,000 for the Lincoln-Lancaster Child Guidance Center to fund a neuro-psychology team. The team would direct an "early warning" program to seek out and treat emotional problems in children, James Hewitt reported.

—$25,000 for Lancaster Child Care Services to help fund a day care center. The program was judged on one of the top three in a national pilot project, Leroy Anderson told city officials.

—$204,000 for the Lancaster Office of Mental Retardation (LOMR) to continue present programming.

George Marietta reported that because of changes in federal eligibility guidelines and cut-backs in federal funding that a number of Lincoln children in the LOMR program will become ineligible.

—$30,000 for the Peoples' City Mission to continue operation of the emergency family shelter at 84th and Adams. The Rev. Jerry Dunn reported that before the shelter was in operation, the

18 Firemen Hurt In Fire In Philadelphia

Philadelphia (AP) — An eight-alarm blaze at a chemical plant raged out of control Tuesday night. Fire officials said the plant was rocked by several explosions and at least 18 firemen were injured.

The blaze began spreading to a nearby row of homes, fire officials said. Eight firemen suffering from smoke inhalation were taken to St. Agnes Hospital where all were reported under examination but apparently not seriously injured.

A spokesman for Pennsylvania Hospital said 14 firemen were treated there — all suffering from falling debris and burns.

The spokesman said several would be admitted.

Three Columbus Men Held For Meter Attack

COLUMBUS, Neb. (AP) — Three Columbus residents were held in the Platte County jail in lieu of $1,000 bond each Tuesday after their arrest early Monday on a felony charge of destruction of property.

The three are Norman P. Sutton, 17 and John P. Bures and Phillip W. Martenn, no ages given. They were arrested shortly after the alleged incident.

They are charged with using chains to destroy parking meters along 13th Street in Columbus between 26th and 27th Avenues. A preliminary hearing was set for July 10.

United Fund picked up 80% of the program's cost. Now, with the shelter the United Fund contributions amount to 51%.

—$14,000 for the Senior and Disabled Handicraft Co-op to help fund that program.

—From $15,000 to $110,000 to fund a Lincoln Action Program (LAP) emergency referral center.

Diane Beecher reported that the proposed center would coordinate all existing social service programs, would be in an accessible location and would assist other agencies in providing emergency services.

—$102,000 to fund LAP outreach programs. Lana Balka reported that funds for the outreach services and basic administration costs could be terminated by the Office of Economic Opportunity.

—$181,000 for LAP to aid in rental assistance payments.

—$66,666 to fund the Women in Community Services program since federal funds will be dropped.

—$34,000 for the Open Door Health Center to help the operation get off the ground. Dr. Cherita Richardson reported that the center also acts as a basic referral agency.

—$33,400 to help fund the Lincoln-Lancaster County Indian Alcoholism Program.

—$3,500 requested by John Two Birds Arbuckle to help fund an Indian pow wow in Lincoln to "help close the cultural gap," he said.

Support for these programs also was registered by the Clinton Neighborhood Organization, the YWCA and the Coalition for Survival of Human Services.

Health Board Okays Budget Of $593,476

The Lincoln-Lancaster County Health Board approved a budget of $593,476 for fiscal year 1973-74 Tuesday night. This compares with $540,230 for the past year.

Included in the new budget request is $432,480 for salaries, $8,500 as a salary contingency, $149,786 for operation and maintenance and $2,700 for capital expenditures.

There is an increase of over $30,000 in the area of salaries and the operation and maintenance area has been upped by 14%. The 14% increase is primarily due to the addition of a leased vehicle and increased insurance costs.

The salary contingency share was increased by $5,000 to provide the money needed to retire Dr. George Underwood, Lester Jensen, and Les Sanger from the department.

These employees will receive one fourth of their accumulated sick leave and all their accumulated vacation pay.

In other business, the board received the results of water quality surveys in Agnew, Cheney, Emerald, Kramer, Martell, Prairie Home and Princeton.

The board voted to send the results of the surveys along with a letter explaining the survey and offering possible solutions.

The board also voted Tuesday night to have the president appoint a committee to recruit a new director for the department.

Dr. Underwood, the present director, will be retiring at the end of the year.

Body Of Man Found In River

Council Bluffs, Iowa (AP) — The body of a man who reportedly walked away from the Nebraska Psychiatric Institute in Omaha has been taken from the Missouri River by Council Bluffs, Iowa, authorities.

The man was identified as Leonard W. Dougherty, 33, of Omaha, who Nebraska officials said was reported missing June 2. His body was recovered Monday.

Officials said the man appeared to have drowned, but an autopsy was planned.

HEALTH TIP

FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

The Nebraska Medical Association points out that many things contribute to an accident, and there are usually many "human" factors behind most farm accidents.

No safety consultant comes out to help the farmer, as in industry. The farm family is responsible for its own farm safety.

Some of the factors that cause farm accidents include: fatigue, anger, lack of skill or knowledge, hurry, boredom, unrecognized limitations of age of physical ability, low blood sugar, natural elements such as extreme heat and cold, procrastination in fixing hazards, failing to train children or anticipating behavior, pace, and a general negative attitude toward safety.

Many accidents happen because of a "It cannot happen to me" attitude. Farm life is complete with hazards that must be taken into consideration to avoid accidents.

The tractor is involved in the most injury-producing accidents, though it is considerably safer than several other machines such as the cornpicker, baler, and combine.

Use common sense with all farm machinery including the tractor. Keep your keys out of reach of children. Use the guards provided and hitch properly to the drawbar. Watch for hidden obstacles that can throw you.

When you are on a highway, be courteous and pull over to let traffic pass. Use your slow moving farm vehicle emblem and signal your stops and turns.

The farmer must be his own safety consultant says the NMA. Constant awareness of farm safety and its practice can avoid many needless injuries.

Geology Study Stipends Given

The famous Eeyore, the Old gray donkey who is a companion of Winnie the Pooh, constantly is described as gloomy, grumbling, and miserable, but not this Eeyore.

A resident of the Lincoln Children's Zoo's compound area, I prefer to think of myself not only as cheerful, pleasant, and friendly, but also as affectionate, fun-loving, and people-loving, despite the fact that I don't like to be ridden. You see, we donkeys have historically been used as pack animals and beasts of burden and I, for one, don't particularly care for that role.

I am a Sicilian Donkey (Equus asinus) and the daughter of Jovy and Jack. My mother, by the way, is, at the age of eight years, one of the zoo's original animals. They reside at Pioneer Park, where I was born little more than a year ago, but Mother plans to spend at least a part of the summer here with me.

We Sicilian Donkeys come from the arid regions of Italy. We have long ears which not only help us to hear but also dissipate our body heat. Largely gray in color, we have brown stripes down our backs and sides.

Those stripes have quite a story behind them. According to an ancient legend, it was a Sicilian Donkey which carried Jesus Christ into Jerusalem on Palm Sunday.

After the donkey had taken him through the streets of the city, he blessed the animal and put the brown colored cross on its back. In fact, Sicilian Donkeys are the only burros with crosses on their backs.

We donkeys or burros are descendants of the horse and thus have quite an ancestry. In fact, the only truly wild horse in existence is the Przewalski horse originally found in certain regions of Mongolia although most of them have been placed in zoos — and those wild horses are more donkey-like than horse-like.

Though horses originally evolved in North America, those ancient creatures crossed to the west by way of the Bering Strait and never returned to their homeland.

In fact, when white man first arrived on this continent, there were no wild horses in existence. Contrary to popular belief, the Indians did not have horses, but used dogs as beasts of burden until the Spaniards imported North America's first modern-day horses.

As I said earlier, the horse and donkey came from the same stock, but evolved separately, with burros inhabiting the more arid regions. But horses and donkeys still interbreed, and since they are of different species, the children or offspring, are infertile and called mules.

Anyone who knows anything about horses and donkeys will tell you that burros are far more intelligent than the common horse. But our intelligence may be the reason why we have such reputations for our stubbornness.

A horse will work himself to death, but would donkeys do something that stupid? Never! If we are tired, we will just lie down. If the load is too heavy, we won't carry it. And then, when horses are thirsty, they have been known to drink themselves to death. We're too smart to do anything like that.

Be sure to stop by and see this bright, cheerful Eeyore when you are at the zoo next time — and don't forget the Lincoln Symphony Orchestra's Zoo's-A-Poppin concert at 7:30 p.m. tonight.

Dialing Is Discipline Method

DEAR ABBY: Will you please settle a misunderstanding among myself, my husband, and my mother concerning my 7-year-old son?

Dickie loves to talk to his grandmother (my mother) on the telephone, and occasionally, as a disciplining measure, we deny him that privilege.

When the phone rings, if I don't get it before Dickie and it's his grandmother, he tells her that he's not allowed to talk to her.

My mother gets upset because she feels she should be able to talk to her grandson when she calls. She even suggested that if she should die suddenly and Dickie hadn't been allowed to talk to her, he would hold it against my husband and me. She asked me how I would feel then?

My husband and I think we have a right to discipline our son as we see fit, but since my mother brought up this dying business we aren't so sure. Thanks for any help you can give us.

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: Surely you and your husband can discipline your son in some other way. By denying him the privilege of talking to his grandmother, you are punishing her, too. But he's your son so YOU make the rules. And don't let grandma blackmail you with talk of sudden death and ensuing guilt.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "WONDERING IN WEST VIRGINIA": You are wondering with good reason. If two Rh negative parents have an Rh positive baby, then one must question whether the mother is the mother or the father is the father.

Woman Begins Father's Day

Father's Day, celebrated next Sunday, was inspired by a woman — Mrs. Bruce Dodd of Spokane, Wash. Mrs. Dodd, who conceived the idea while listening to a Mother's Day sermon, organized the first observance in 1910 to honor her father, William Jackson Smart. Smart had single-handedly raised his family of six children.

member for the past seven years and home economics editor in the UNI Department of Information, currently is on leave from her position and is working toward a doctorate degree in adult education.

Also installed at the meeting were Betty Jean Keller, a member of the Governor's Commission on the Status of Women, vice president; Diane Mehring, corresponding secretary; Jean Furr, recording secretary; and Jean Enslin, treasurer.

WEAL is dedicated to improving the status of American women through education, legislation, and litigation. It seeks to promote the economic progress of women, to press for full enforcement of existing anti-discrimination laws, to pass new legislation improving women's status, to correct de facto discrimination against women and to urge that young women be prepared realistically for life.

The organization was incorporated in Ohio in 1968, and the Nebraska division was founded two years ago.

Evening Wear You Can Wash Shown

By HELEN HAGGIE
New York — It took a bit of persuasion, but Bob Goldworm was prevailed upon to do the commentary on the Goldworm show.

"What I do is design and manufacture clothes. What I don't do is commentate fashion shows," were his opening remarks. But his performance was that of a pro.

Possibly some of his most successful clothes are the art print groups in which he has chosen prints of Monet, Van Gogh, Roualt, Matisse and Braque. It is seldom seen in fashion — the absolutely perfectly matched dyes of two different fabrics. Yet in this group, Bob uses silk chiffon and wool — and the match is perfect. One of the very lovely long dresses is a shirt with a Matisse Print.

In his fall-winter collection shown to editors attending the New York Couture Business Council press showings at the Hotel Hilton this week, Bob also saluted former designers, Norell, in the shifts of white and coral; and Coco Chanel in a beige with a glint of gold suit.

The little black dress for evening — short of course — was seen. Bob said, "Maybe the little black dress is back."

The group of dresses of Polyester Lurex had editors' mouths agape. They were described as machine washable and dryable.

"I'd be afraid to try it," one editor mused. "They should not be dry cleaned," the commentator cautioned. One beautiful print of pinks and blues with full skirt dropping from the thigh on the bias, was described as "You can dance all night in this one and toss it into the washer in the morning, then into the dryer and wear it the next night for a big evening."

Roberta Anderson, who did the commentary for the Count Romi coats, echoed Vincent Mone-Sano's remarks about the raincoat.

"No longer," she said, "is it something you stash away in the closet and bring it only when the elements threaten to ruin your good coat. Today, the all-weather coat is as sharply tailored and as elegant as other coats."

And the showings proved her point. A long bright yellow coat in Qiana had gold buttons and trim on the epaulettes. Perfect for evening wear is the way Roberta described it.

One of the most striking daytime coats was a red with pin tucking running vertically across the front in a V yoke at the back.

Most of the coats had tie belts — some very, very narrow, known in yesteryears as "string belts." Many were threaded with chain, either in gold or silver.

faithful trench in canvas, highlighted with aerpel, also was present.

Cuts of the coats are looser across the bosom, wider at the shoulder and roomier at the waist. Roberts said they may be worn with or without belts.

The coats moved away from the body and took movement to make the thin woman look thinner. And perhaps they are heaven-sent for the woman who cannot stay on a diet!

TAFY Elects Mrs. Hamann

New officers and board members of the Theatre Arts For Youth (TAFY) were announced Tuesday at the group's annual progress report luncheon.

The officers for the 1973-74 season include Mrs. Donald Hamann, president; David Calhoun, vice president; Mrs. Carroll Moore, secretary; and Tom Poggenmeyer, treasurer.

Included among the new board members are Dr. Phillip Kaye, Mrs. Dorothy Lougee, Mrs. Joseph McWilliams, Mrs.

Diane Porter, Milan Wall and Mrs. Charles Turek. Other board members are Mrs. Joseph O. Young, Wallace A. Richardson, Arthur Kuhr, Dr. Tice Miller and Mrs. John Pershing.

According to the outgoing president, Mrs. Dorothy Young, who conducted the meeting, one of the main goals of TAFY is to utilize the organizations available within the community as well as those outside the Lincoln area.

The group's success in this endeavor is best exemplified by its four productions during the past season: "The Mayflower," presented at Kimball Recital Hall and written by University of Nebraska-Lincoln Professor Robert Beadell; various short productions by the nationally renowned Little Theatre of the Deaf; "The Dancing Donkey," co-produced by the Nebraska Wesleyan University Speech and Drama Departments and presented in the NWU Loft Theatre; and international fairytale productions presented by the East High School Mime Troupe.

Another important aim noted by Mrs. Young is the group's constant attempt to improve the artistic quality of TAFY productions.

She added that the 1973-74 season will include a concert performance of the Lincoln Youth Symphony Orchestra; "Young Jefferson," performed by the Performing Arts Repertory Theatre of New York; Theatre In The Round at NWU; a musical, "Punch and Judy," by the University of Kansas Children's Theatre; and "Puppets Meet the Moog Synthesizer," by the Lincoln Community Playhouse Puppeteers.

It was also announced that TAFY membership now stands at 83 members and that the ticket sales campaign will continue until Aug. 1.

Bog Spencer Resigns Post At Lincoln Zoo

Bob Spencer, director of the Lincoln Children's Zoo for the past eight years, resigned his position effective June 9.

The announcement was made Tuesday by Mrs. Ron Clark, president of the Arnett R. Folsom Zoological Society, who said that the executive committee of the society which directs the zoo's activities will recommend that Sam Wolff, Spencer's assistant, be named acting director for the duration of the current season.

The entire society will act on that recommendation Friday, Mrs. Clark said.

"He enjoyed the association he had with the zoo," Mrs. Clark said of Spencer, who resigned for "personal reasons." "We are looking forward to a successful and healthy zoo year," she said, adding that "We all have worked hard to make the zoo the great thing it should be for the city of Lincoln and that was largely through the support of a strong board and a great community."

Serving as delegates of the Nebraska Commission to the third annual conference will be Mrs. Virginia L. Portschke, chairman, and Mrs. Peggy Flower of Omaha. Also attending from Nebraska will be Mrs. B. J. Keller and Mrs. Venette Creager, IACSW Southwest Regional directors.

"This year's session is particularly important at a time when increasing responsibilities for social change and services are being handed to agents of state and local governments," said Mrs. Portschke.

IACSW represents 48 state and more than 25 county and municipal Commissions on the Status of Women throughout the country, and is the only official unit of government specifically charged with advocacy of rights of all women.

'Sentimental Favorite' Palmer Eyes Open

Baseball Favorite Whipping Boy

Every time someone from another line of work enters the sports writing field, it seems the first thing they attack is baseball, which seems to be a favorite whipping boy.

The latest to do so is David Eisenhower, who for some reason has become a sports columnist.

But a recent Louis Harris Survey, copyrighted by the Chicago Tribune, shows that baseball has had a steady increase in followers from among the nation's sports fans. The Harris Survey shows 56 per cent of those questioned in 1970 following baseball, 57 per cent in 1971, 60 per cent in 1972 and 62 per cent in 1973.

The only other sports showing an increase each year are auto racing and tennis with auto racing going from 21 per cent in 1970 to 22 in 1971, 23 in 1972 and 26 in 1973. Tennis went from 10 in 1970 to 11 in 1971, 16 in 1972 and 17 in 1973.

Golf and boxing showed the biggest jump from 1972 to 1973 with golf going up eight per cent from 20 to 28 and boxing up nine per cent from 22 to 29.

Checks His Gun

Dick Ernst, who is well-known to Big Eight track enthusiasts as the starter for both the Big Eight Indoor and Outdoor Championships, is one fellow who has started checking his briefcase with airlines rather than carrying it aboard.

"I used to always have to give the airlines the starting gun from the case and then pick it up from the pilot when I got off the plane," the Detroit resident explains, "But since they've started getting touchier about it, I just check the briefcase at the ticket counter."

Pro golfer Doug Sanders describing a party he attended: "I don't know how much we drank, but we had to empty the garbage cans twice — just for the corks."

Former Kansas City Chiefs football player E. J. Holub, now retired, recently underwent his 11th knee operation. It was on his left one, putting that knee ahead of the right one by 6 to 5.

Milwaukee Brewers executive Frank Lane explaining why the Brewers didn't make any trades last winter says, "Heck, we didn't want to weaken the rest of the league."

Have you heard about the women's lib leader, who got a job as an usherette at a ballpark so she could pay for putting a man in his place?

It's Bing Calling

Virtually everyone at some time in his life has received one of those phone calls from a friend disguising himself as someone else.

Jim Hill of Los Angeles thought he was getting such a call last winter when the voice on the other end of the line identified himself as Bing Crosby and asked if he planned to play in his (Crosby's) golf tournament.

"So you're Bing Crosby," Hill replied in a mocking voice. "Know any more good jokes? Now who are you, and who put you up to calling me?"

Bing tried again to establish his identity, but with no success. "Quit kidding me," Hill said. "I might believe you if you sang White Christmas."

So Bing obliged. Crosby was calling Hill because two previous letters inviting the amateur golfer to play in the Crosby pro-am had gone unanswered.

Hill accepted the invitation immediately via the telephone.

Denise, De Nephew

Salt Lake City sports scribe John Mooney tells this one.

It has to do with the couple involved in an auto accident. Before regaining consciousness, the wife gave birth to twins and when neither parent was able to name the children the doctor called in their closest relative, an uncle who plays pro football.

"He can't even remember his own name," said the wife. "What in the world did he call our darling little girl?"

"Denise," said the doctor.

"That's a lovely name for a little girl," said the wife. "And what did he name our son?"

"De nephew," said the doc.

Then there was the college basketball coach, who posted this notice on his door: "I'm busy, but if you can see over the transom, come in."

OAKMONT, Pa. (AP) — Arnold Palmer answered the questions with the unflinching patience and courtesy that have made him a favorite of the world's golfing millions for almost two decades. It was very low key. He's now 43, winner of only one tournament in the last two years, subject to prolonged slumps, often tagged with the condescending label "sentimental favorite."

photographed faces in the world. "Oh, yes, definitely. That would really be it." His enthusiasm is easily understood. In the U.S. Open at Oakmont in 1962, Palmer was the unchallenged king of the game, at the peak of his powers and popularity.

And Jack Nicklaus beat him in a playoff for the American national championship. It was the beginning of the Nicklaus era and the beginning of the end of Palmer's reign.

Now, with the Open returning to Oakmont 11 years later, Nicklaus is The Man, the dominant figure in the game, the favorite every time he plays, the world's premier player.

Asked to assess Jack's chances in this, possibly the most prestigious tournament in the world, Palmer thought a minute.

"Jack? He's at the peak of his game."

He paused and a strange, almost wistful look flitted across his face.

"He's 33. When I was 33 I won the Masters and the British Open. I lost the U.S. Open in a playoff and lost the PGA by one stroke. That's pretty close to the never-accomplished Grand Slam, a one-year sweep of all the major championships. I won eight tournaments that year.

That's not bad."

While that may have been the best year of his fabled career, the slide down the other side of the mountain was just beginning. It was Nicklaus' playoff victory here that pushed him over the top and marked the end of the ascent.

And, for that reason, a victory over Nicklaus at Oakmont could be the sweetest of all his more than 70 world triumphs.

To accomplish that long-shot ambition, Palmer has restructured his game. He's taken one of his longest breaks ever from competition, playing only once in the last month and a half.

As always, when he has had his problems, he returned to home ground, to the picturesque Laurel Highlands in Western Pennsylvania. And he sought the help of his only coach and teacher, his father "Deek" Palmer.

"I'd gotten into some bad habits," he said. "It started maybe two years ago."

"I was playing with my Dad one day and he saw something in the swing and said 'you didn't used to do that.'"

"I was getting out of position."

"It's something you can't see yourself. You don't know it's happening. And it takes time to get straightened out. That's one reason I took the break."

"I'm working on getting it back in position. It's the address, the take-away, everything. The whole ball of wax."

"I think I'm on the right track now. I've got something to work on. I'm working on my game from tee to green. I want to get longer."

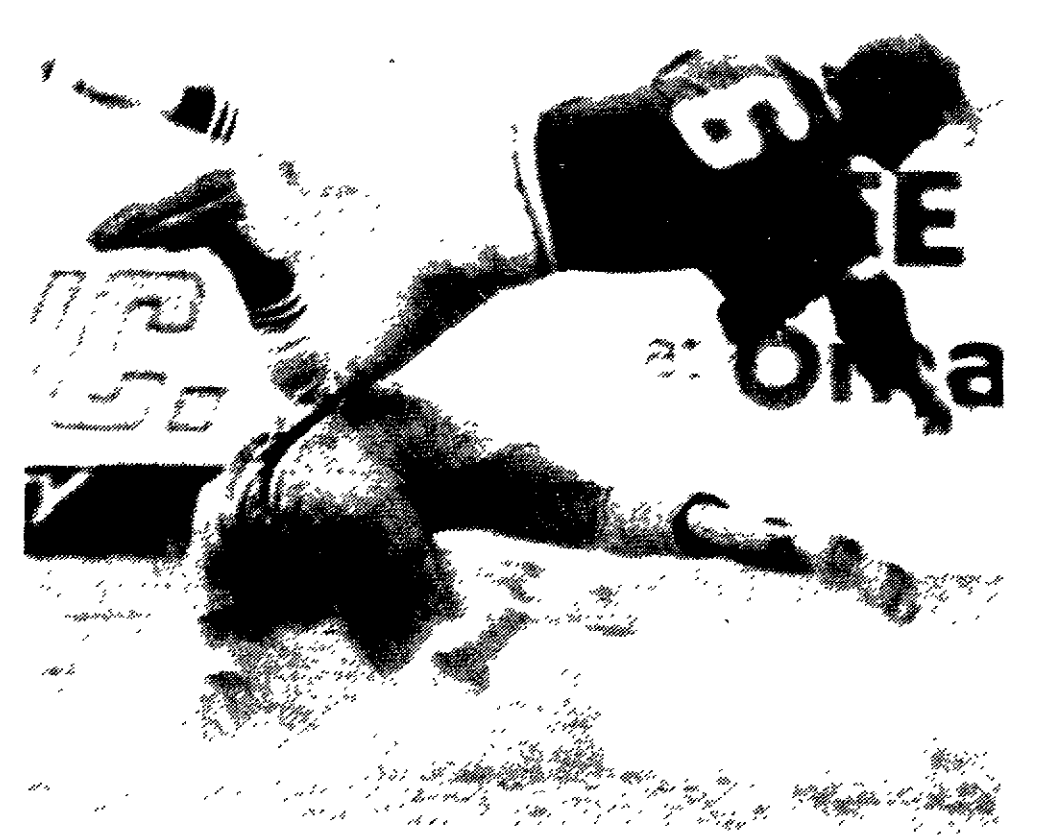

"That helps me get pumped up, when I can get it out there, reach those par fives you're not supposed to reach in two. That's fun."

"If this is the answer, fine. If I can get it back to where it should be. If not, I'll just have to work on it more. I'm not saying I'll quit, but if I can get this worked out I may play a lot more than I have been."

"Can he still do it? Can he still win? Can he roll back the years and once again swing the world the Palmer that was? Does he still have that flaming desire?"

"I think so," he said very quietly. "It's difficult to say. At this age, maybe not but it's almost impossible to say. I still think I can do it or I wouldn't be playing."

USC RALLIES TO WIN

BOWLED OVER... Bobby Clark (6) of Texas is hurled off his feet by Dennis Kendrick of Arizona St.

Minnesota Drops 7-0 Lead in Ninth, 8-7

... SUN DEVILS ELIMINATE TEXAS, 6-5

By MARK GORDON

Star Sports Writer

Omaha — Southern California, displaying an unbelievable rally, tallied eight runs in the final inning to eliminate Minnesota, 8-7. Tuesday night at the 27th annual College World Series at Rosenblatt Stadium.

The victory left USC the only unbeaten club left in the eight-team CWS and set up an Arizona State-Southern California battle for the second straight season. Arizona State, saddled with a 3-1 loss to USC Monday night, eliminated Texas, 6-5, in the opening Tuesday game.

If USC wins the 7:35 p.m. Wednesday game it will win an unprecedented fourth straight national title and become the first undefeated CWS titlist since the 1968 Trojan squad which pulled the trick. If ASU wins, it will set up a Thursday night final game.

Limited to only one hit by senior hurler Dave Winfield through the first eight innings, the final inning produced what may have been the biggest explosion under dramatic circumstances in CWS history.

With eight singles, three Minnesota errors and a sacrifice fly, the Trojans battered three Gopher pitchers for the eight runs and the victory.

Minnesota was so upset by the defeat, they immediately left the stadium and refused to talk with newsmen.

The Trojans tied the game on a long sacrifice fly to right by Ken Huizenga.

A single by Creighton Tevlin knocked in pinch runner Marvin Cobb, who was running for pinch hitter Dennis Littlejohn, who had singled.

The rally overshadowed what had been a Herculean pitching job by Winfield. He struck out 15 batters before he tired in the ninth under the Trojan onslaught.

The 15 strikeouts gave him 29 for the series. He struck out 24 Oklahoma batters in a 1-0 Minnesota victory last Friday.

It appeared as if the 21-year-old senior from St. Paul Central was rolling towards another shutout effort. But Minnesota coach Dick Siebert elected to stay with Winfield after it was obvious he was being tagged with regularity by the Trojans.

CWS Attendance

Pace Still Lagging

Omaha — Tuesday night's crowd of 9,686 pushed the total 1973 College World Series attendance to 53,306.

That figure represents a decline of 5,878 from last year's record-breaking total attendance of 80,214.

Williamson Captures Triumph

Bud Williamson, Jr., resident professional at Lochland Country Club in Hastings fired a 70 Tuesday at Hillcrest Country Club to capture first place in the pro division of the Pro-Senior Pro-Am golf tournament.

Amateur golfers were restricted to golfers 50 years-of-age and older.

In the team event, Glen Blakeman of Norfolk combined with three amateurs to record a best-ball effort of 59. Norris Faus and Don Bridge of Norfolk and Dean Wilson of Omaha completed the winning team.

Hillcrest Country Club assistant pro Ron Walters was a distance second in the pro division with a 75 on the par-72 course.

Williamson also combined with two other Hastings golfers and a Kearney golfer to tie for second in the pro-am team division.

Paul Halpine of the Lincoln Country Club led a group of four golfers tied at 66 for the second-place tie in that division.

The tourney was completed despite a late afternoon shower.

Racing License Denied To Jockey Durosseau

Omaha — Jockey L. J. Durosseau was sent back to California by the Nebraska State Racing Commission to fulfill a condition the commission said must be fulfilled before he'll be granted a license to ride in Nebraska again.

Durosseau had been advised earlier when he applied for a Nebraska license that he would have to ride 15 racing days in California before his application would be considered.

He had ridden only six of those days when he and his attorney appeared before the commission at a Tuesday hearing here.

Durosseau had been the leading jockey at Ak-Sar-Ben for three straight years before being suspended in California for more than a year for allegedly using an electrical device during a race.

In November of last year, he was given a license in California to serve as an exercise boy and later was re-instated to good standing by the California Racing Commission.

Durosseau had ridden for two days in California when he returned to Nebraska and sought a license in Nebraska. Advised of the 15-day mandate by commission chairman Harry Farnham, the jockey returned to California and rode for four more days.

Tuesday, he asked the commission to waive the remaining nine days. The request was turned down, but he was advised that as soon as that condition was met, he would be granted a probationary Nebraska license.

"The terms of the probation will be that you must be careful about the people with whom you associate and that your actions will be under more scrutiny than normal," Farnham told Durosseau.

In another licensing matter, the commission continued a stewards' suspension of trainer John Dillard through the month of June.

Dillard had been suspended indefinitely on May 31 by Ak-Sar-Ben Stewards when a horse under his care was found to have been treated with the drug Procaine.

After an investigation the commission ruled that the positive test for Procaine was the result of a buildup from earlier treatments and had not been administered as a stimulant.

Omaha — D. W. Whited and Little L. M. teamed to win the featured seventh race at Ak-Sar-Ben here Tuesday.

Fred Ecoffey, who rode the place horse One End, narrowly missed a riding triple having scored in the previous two races with Golden Miracle in the fifth and Pro Raja in the sixth.

Oddly enough, Whited fell to second in the ninth after winning the feature then capturing the eighth with Pat-A-Rullah and tying for second on Homerunner with Sound The Horn.

"He can't even remember his own name," said the wife. "What in the world did he call our darling little girl?"

"Denise," said the doctor.

"That's a lovely name for a little girl," said the wife. "And what did he name our son?"

Ali Will Be 'Serious' In Sept. Norton Bout

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Former heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali declared Tuesday, "I've learned my lesson. I played too much. Half the time I didn't run."

"This time I'll be serious. I'm already working and in the fight I'll be dancing from beginning to end."

Ali and Ken Norton, the Californian who broke Ali's jaw and outpointed him last March 31, appeared at the Forum, site of their Sept. 10 rematch, for a formal signing ceremony.

Promoter Don Fraser of the sponsoring Forum Boxing Club predicted a California record live gate of more than $700,000 and Bob Arum of New York said more than one million persons were expected to watch the 12-round fight on closed circuit television.

Norton, a virtually unknown 28-year-old ex-Marine until his upset of Ali, turned to Ali and said, "Everything has changed, thanks to you, Muhammad."

"The money has changed drastically and I'm now getting on television, radio and making tours."

Norton is guaranteed $200,000 against 30 percent of all income from his rematch with Ali. He made only $50,000 for his first meeting with the ex-champ and before that $8,000 had been tops in his career.

The two fighters disagreed on the round during which Ali suffered the broken jaw in the 12-round initial meeting at San Diego.

"First they said it was in the first round and they disproved that. Then they said the second and that was disproved. I don't know when I broke it, I'm not a doctor," commented Norton. "I would guess one of the latter rounds."

Muhammad, asked the same question, maintained, "It was the second round. Exactly. I know that."

Ali receives a $275,000 guarantee for the rematch compared to $210,000 for the first bout.

Ali, opening his part of a news conference said "First of all I want to say I'm getting old. I'm 31. Everybody is really writing about that and mentally it bothers me."

Then he went on trying to disprove his own statement of being old.

"I've never really trained for any of the fights you've seen. It finally caught up with me. I'm thankful though, that even in the hour of defeat, I'm still the number one man."

$30,000 syndication of Secretariat earlier this spring.

The fact that his friend Lucien Laurin, the horse's trainer, objects to the idea does not bother Levesque one bit.

Shortly after Saturday's Belmont, Levesque cornered Mrs. Penny Tweedy in the Meadow Stables cottage and made his pitch for Paris.

Sloan Captures Coaches Meet

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (UPI) — Steve Sloan, head coach at Vanderbilt, shot a 74 Tuesday for a two-day total of 144 to win the ninth annual National Football Coaches Invitational Golf Tournament at Hot Springs Village.

Low Sweeps Doubleheader
DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Ken Hottman hit a two-run double in the first game and a grand slam homer in the nightcap to help Iowa to a doubleheader sweep Tuesday night, defeating Omaha 4-0 and 8-0.

Ken Frailing pitched a five-inning shutout for the opener and Stan Perzanowski gave up only two hits in the second game.

Hottman's homer came in the third inning and gave the Oaks a 7-0 lead. Joe Keough also homered for Iowa.

Mrs. Tweedy, who has full operating rights to the horse's racing career until the breeding syndicate takes over Nov. 18, used to get an indulgent look when the subject of the Arc came up. Saturday she looked interested.

"I don't know," she said, "we'd be risking so much, but then again, the way he ran this race..."

Added to the fact Mrs. Tweedy said after the Kentucky Derby she might consider the Arc if Secretariat came out of the Travers in the same shape he was going into the Derby.

"But we'd have to ship him over there about two days after the Travers to give him time to adjust," she said.

"Why wait for the Travers?" asks Levesque.

"What's left for this horse by racing in the United States? Why not leave now and give him at least two months training?"

Lou Cavalaris, the man who trained Dancer's Image, first across the line at the 1968 Derby, thinks there are possibilities.

"They say an American-trained horse can't win the Arc," he said, "but if Secretariat can't win it, I'd like to own the horse in Europe that beats him.

"You just can't talk about this horse in the same way you talk about all other horses. He's absolutely unreal."

However, there is one strongly dissenting opinion to be heard and it is Laurin's.

Unlike most U.S. trainers, Laurin knows what the Arc is all about. He made a special trip to France last year to scout it from all angles and when he came back, claimed no American horse could win it.

"And I'm not going to go back on that opinion. The handicaps are incredible," Laurin says.

"In the first place there's the travel to France and the time it takes the horse to get accustomed. Then there's the matter of proper feed and water. There's the fact they race clockwise around the track in France, which is the exact reverse of here.

"The race is on grass and it's not level. The turns are not uniform as they are here.

"And, maybe most important of all, they insist all horses wear the flat European-styled horseshoes.

Savage Still Listed 'Critical'

Indianapolis (AP) — Driver Swede Savage remained in critical condition Tuesday with injuries suffered in the Indianapolis 500-mile auto race, but has shaken a cold that bothered him over the weekend, doctors say.

Dr. Tom Hanna, medical director of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, said Savage was recovering from a chest flare-up that hit him over the weekend at Methodist Hospital here. Dr. Hanna said the cold had cleared up and that the 26-year-old driver from Santa Ana, Calif., was resting.

Savage crashed on the 59th lap of the rain-delayed auto classic May 30.

New York (AP) — Alvan Adams, a 6-10 freshman for Oklahoma, and Lon Kruger, Kansas State guard who was voted the most valuable player in the Big Eight Conference last season, will lead the United States on its historic basketball venture into China.

"We're going to have a good team," Gene Bartow, head coach at Memphis State, said in a telephone interview as he prepared to go to Chicago, from where the team will leave for Hong Kong.

As for the absence of All-Americans on the team, Bartow said: "Quinn Buckner of Indiana and Kevin Grevey of Kentucky are cinch All-Americans next year and Rich Kelly is just a notch behind UCLA's Bill Walton."

Kelly of Stanford, at 7-2 is the biggest man on the team which also includes 6-11 Jim Andrews of Kentucky, 6-8 Don Jackson of Xavier-New Orleans; 6-8 Ronnie Robinson of Memphis State; 6-7 Wendell Jackson of Ohio State and 6-6 Grevey.

Americans on the team, Bartow said:

Joining Buckner and Kruger in the backcourt are Kevin Stacom of Providence, George Karl of North Carolina, and George Pannell of South Plains Junior College, Tex.

Bartow also said he really had little idea of what might be awaiting his team in China but that he "doubts if they will be as physical as the Russians."

Redmond Inks Pact

Detroit (AP) — Mickey Redmond, the first Detroit Red Wing to score 50 goals in a season, has signed a contract with the club reportedly worth $1 million.

War Against Heroin May Be Backfiring

NEW YORK (AP) — A war against growing poppies that yield heroin threatens to boomerang into a harvest of pain for millions of people, drug experts are warning.

The reason is those same poppies supply the morphine and codeine to kill or diminish pains ranging from cancer to aching joints.

A worldwide shortage of codeine could come as early as this fall, says Phillip Reed, president of S. B. Penick Co., one of three U.S. firms licensed to make codeine from opium obtained from opium poppies. The opium can be turned into morphine, and then either into codeine, or heroin.

The shortage looms because the Nixon administration is paying Turkey $35 million not to grow poppies at all, even for legal, medical use. Turkey has been one source of legal opium, but also a source of heroin finding its way to the United States.

The poppy curb is "an example of well-meant but disputable political action" to cut off a source of heroin, say Drs. Linwood Tice and John H. Moyer of Philadelphia.

"It will probably make no significant difference in the activities of the underworld and their illicit importation and sale of heroin," they write in the publication, Internal Medicine News.

Much heroin comes from the so-called Golden Triangle of Southeast Asia, the countries of Burma, Thailand, and Laos, Reed says.

The bulk producers met Monday in Washington with a high-level task force reviewing federal opium policies, urging release of some opium from the government's stockpile, to relieve the short-term problem.

The stockpile, plus continuing imports, could take care of U.S. needs for about two years, giving time to work out a program to secure a continuing and sufficient supply of legal opium, Reed said.

Guerrillas Move Closer To Cambodian Capital

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Communist-led insurgents moved closer to the Cambodian capital Tuesday by surrounding a government garrison 11 miles away on Highway 3 and infiltrating two other positions nine miles away on Highway 4.

Thai-based U.S. Air Force jet fighter-bombers raided suspected insurgent positions in both battle zones all day long in support of government ground troops. The sound of exploding bombs and government artillery shells was heard in Phnom Penh.

The insurgents resorted to wide use of tear gas grenades on Highway 4, apparently in hope of weakening government soldiers and making them defenseless.

Field reports said insurgent forces encircled a battalion garrisoned at the district town of Prey Totung on Highway 3 and cut it off from the capital. An infantry column pushing down the road to relieve Prey Totung's defenders ran into a firefight and pulled back, the reports said.

Another government garrison 16 miles farther south in the provincial capital of Tram Khmar has remained isolated since it was encircled several weeks ago. But military sources said it has sufficient ammunition and food to continue holding out indefinitely.

Texaco, Coastal States Named In Antitrust Suit

NEW YORK (AP) — The Justice Department Tuesday brought an antitrust action against Texaco Inc. and an independent refiner, charging they entered into an agreement to restrain the sale of gasoline to independents.

Texaco was described by the Justice Department as the nation's leading oil refiner and marketer. The refiner is Coastal States Gas Producing Co. of Corpus Christi, Tex.

Spokesmen for Texaco at its headquarters here were not immediately available for comment. A secretary said they were working on a statement.

The suit claims that an agreement between Texaco and Coastal States unreasonably restrains the sale of gasoline and fuel oil, and that it may substantially lessen competition or tend to create a monopoly by allowing Texaco to acquire Coastal's assets and operations, the Justice Department said.

The suit, filed in U.S. District Court in Manhattan, where Texaco has corporate headquarters, alleges the agreement deprives Coastal States of the right to sell refined products to others, including independents, and deprives Texaco competitors of the opportunity to buy substantial amounts of those products from Coastal States.

The civil suit asks the court to dissolve the agreement and to adjoint Texaco from selling crude oil to anyone with the condition that Texaco be given preference as a customer for its refined petroleum products.

Thomas E. Kauper, assistant attorney general in charge of the antitrust division, said the number of refined product supply sources available to independent dealers has shown a marked decline. Kauper said this was due to mergers and acquisitions in the industry.

Frontier Plane Runs Into Deer

North Platte (AP) — A Frontier airliner struck and killed a deer while attempting a take-off from the North Platte airport Tuesday night.

A Frontier spokesman said the plane was not damaged, but takeoff was delayed until later in the evening because mechanics had to be flown in from Denver to inspect the plane, a Convair 580.

The flight was eastbound with stops in Grand Island, Lincoln, Omaha and Kansas City. Approximately 25 persons were aboard.

Hopes Boost Stocks

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved upwards Tuesday in moderately active trading as investors hoped President Nixon's forthcoming speech would bring good economic news.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial closed ahead 11.89 at 927.00. Advancing issues on the New York Stock Exchange led declines 988 to 439 in the 1,758 issues changing hands.

"It's a market of great expectations, hoping something is going to finally materialize," said Newton Zinder of E. F. Hutton & Co.

Reports circulated that Nixon would go on nationwide television Wednesday night to disclose new moves to curb inflation, but the White House declined to confirm the rumors.

Robert Stovall of Reynolds Securities noted that a number of foreign buyers were active, indicating they believed Nixon was about to take a tougher stance on inflation.

Trading was light in the early part of the session but picked up later today to close at a volume of 13.84 million shares.

The broad-based NYSE index of some 1,500 common stocks finished up 0.31 to 927.00. Royal Industries was the most active issue on the Big Board down 1/4 to 24 1/2.

Over the counter, the second most active down 1/4 to 24 1/2. Most of that action came in a 116,500-share block picked up at 23 1/2 off 1/2.

International Telephone picked up 3/4 to 34 3/4 as the third-most active issue. ITT dropped 1/4 to 24 1/2 after a week in the red.

The Amex price change index closed up 0.22 to 22.65. Advancing issues led declines 180 to 336 in the 1,126 issues changing hands.

Over the Counter trading, the NASDAQ index closed up 1.75 at 104.79.

EVERYBODY'S MONEY: Fresh Look Suggested At Investment Portfolio

By Myrle S. Rukeyser

At the race track, they won't take bets after the horses have crossed the finish line.

That fact of life should help the prudent to avoid the habit of the sucker of looking backwards. The investor victimizes himself by dwelling on current price realizations of why stock prices fell from grace since the January peak.

Today's problem is what to do with savings in light of known realities and prospects. Since even the mighty have fallen, it's timely to take a fresh hard look at securities in your portfolio and decide whether your current net worth is wisely committed.

During financial hurricanes all are affected, though the strong trees tend to withstand the heavy destructive winds better. Even the choice, high multiple premier growth stocks have declined from the peak, but at a much lesser extent than the unseasoned speculative high fliers and substantially less than mutual funds.

Of 440 stock funds, 130 are down 25% since the end of 1972 and 102 are off 40% or more. 400 diversified stock funds only seven during the past 12 months have done as well or better than the Dow Jones Average.

Meanwhile, the shares of 12 high quality growth stocks in the David Babson index have declined only 8% since the end of the year. David T. Wendell, of the Babson organization, observed: "What separates this type of stock from the rest of the market is the proven ability of these companies to sustain their earnings growth under the inflationary conditions that have prevailed since the mid-1960s."

This remark should be carefully weighed, because a major error during this chronic rise in living costs was the glib assumption that the investor could hedge against inflation by indiscriminately buying common stocks. Some shares however proved to be those of enterprises which were hurt by inflation since costs rose faster than selling prices.

But high grade growth companies were distinctive in that they were able even under inflationary conditions to improve their profits faster than the dollar depreciated (or the cost of living went up).

Thus since 1968 20 growth stocks on the average increased their per share earnings by 60%, while profits of all domestic corporations rose by only 25%. Included in this group of 20 are Air Products, American Home, AMP, Colgate, Dow Chemical, Eastman Kodak, Exxon, Gillette, Halliburton, Honeywell, IBM, Eli Lilly, Merck, Minnesota Mining, National Starch, Procter & Gamble, Procter & Gamble, Xerox.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE - Here's how to work it:

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three I's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
